1. INTRODUCTION

1. The laundering of criminal proceeds and the financing of terrorism through the financial systems of the world is vital to the success of criminal and terrorist operations. To this end, criminals and terrorists seek to exploit the facilities of the world's financial services businesses in order to benefit from such proceeds or financing. Increased integration of the world's financial systems and the removal of barriers to the free movement of capital have enhanced the ease with which criminal proceeds can be laundered or terrorist funds transferred and have added to the complexity of audit trails. The future of the Bailiwick of Guernsey (Guernsey) as a well-respected international financial centre depends on its ability to prevent the abuse of its financial services sector. Descriptions of money laundering and terrorist financing are provided in Appendix G to this Handbook.

1.1 Background and Scope

2. The Guernsey authorities are committed to ensuring that money launderers, terrorists, those financing terrorism and other criminals, cannot launder the proceeds of crime through Guernsey, or otherwise use Guernsey's finance sector. The Guernsey Financial Services Commission (the Commission) endorses the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering's (FATF's) Forty Recommendations on Money Laundering and the IX Special Recommendations on Terrorist Financing. The Handbook for Financial Services Businesses on Countering Financial Crime and Terrorist Financing (the Handbook) is a statement of the standards expected by the Commission of all financial services businesses in Guernsey to ensure Guernsey's compliance with the FATF's standards.
3. Guernsey's anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) legislation (and by extension, the Handbook) applies to all financial services businesses conducting financial services business in Guernsey. This includes Guernsey-based branches and offices of companies incorporated outside Guernsey conducting financial services business in Guernsey.

1.2 Purpose of the Handbook

4. The Handbook has been issued by the Commission and, together with Statements issued by the Commission, contains the rules and guidance referred to in Regulation 3(2) of the Criminal Justice (Proceeds of Crime) (Financial Services Businesses) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Regulations, 2007 (the Regulations), section 15(6)(a) of the Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002, section 15 of the Disclosure (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2007 and section 15 of the Transfer of Funds (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2007; the Transfer of Funds (Alderney) Ordinance, 2007 and the Transfer of Funds (Sark) Ordinance, 2007.
5. The Handbook is issued to assist financial services businesses to comply with the requirements of the relevant legislation concerning money laundering, terrorist financing and related offences to prevent the Bailiwick's financial system from being used in the laundering of money or the financing of terrorism. The Criminal Justice (Proceeds of Crime) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 1999 as amended and the Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002 as amended states that the Guernsey courts shall take account of rules made and guidance given by the Commission in determining whether or not a person has complied with the Regulations.

6. The Guernsey AML/CFT framework includes the following legislation, which is referred to in the Handbook as the relevant enactments:

- The Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Guernsey) Law, 1995;
- The Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Alderney) Law, 1998 as amended;
- The Criminal Justice (Proceeds of Crime) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 1999 as amended;
- The Drug Trafficking (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2000 as amended;
- The Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Sark) Law, 2001 as amended;
- The Terrorism (United Nations Measures) (Channel Islands) Order 2001;
- The Al-Qa'ida and Taliban (United Nations Measures) (Channel Islands) Order 2002;
- The Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002 as amended;
- The Transfer of Funds (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2007;
- The Transfer of Funds (Alderney) Ordinance, 2007;
- The Transfer of Funds (Sark) Ordinance, 2007; and
- The Disclosure (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2007.

7. The Regulations include requirements relating to:

- risk assessment and mitigation;
- undertaking customer due diligence (CDD);
- monitoring customer activity and ongoing CDD;
- reporting suspected money laundering and terrorist financing activity;
- staff screening and training;
- record keeping; and
- ensuring compliance, corporate responsibility and related requirements.

8. For any financial services business the primary consequences of any significant failure to meet the standards required by the Regulations, the Handbook and the relevant enactments will be legal ones.

9. As regards a financial services business regulated by the Commission, the Commission is entitled to take such failure into consideration in the exercise of its judgment as to whether the financial services business and its directors and managers have satisfied the minimum criteria for licensing. In particular, in determining whether a firm is carrying on its business with integrity and skill and whether a person is fit and proper, the Commission must have regard to compliance with the Regulations, related rules in the Handbook and the relevant enactments.
10. As regards a financial services business which is not regulated by, but is registered with, the Commission, the Commission is entitled to consider compliance with the Regulations, the Handbook and the relevant enactments when exercising its judgement in considering the continuing registration of a financial services business.

1.3 Contents of the Handbook

11. The Handbook is divided into three parts. The text in Part 1 applies to all Guernsey financial services businesses. Part 2 provides material for a number of specific industry sectors, which supplements the generic text contained in Part 1. Part 3 contains appendices and a glossary of terms.
12. The full text of the Regulations is set out in Appendix E. That text is definitive. Any paraphrasing of that text within Part 1 or 2 of the Handbook represents the Commission's own explanation of the Regulations and is for the purposes of information and assistance only. That paraphrasing does not detract from the legal effect of the Regulations or from their enforceability by the courts. In case of doubt you are advised to consult a Guernsey Advocate.
13. Part 1 of the Handbook takes a two-level approach:
 - Level one (Commission Rules) sets out how the Commission requires financial services businesses to meet the Regulations. Compliance with the Commission Rules must be taken into account by the courts when considering compliance with the Regulations (which are legally enforceable and a contravention of which can result in prosecution). In addition, the Commission can take enforcement action under the regulatory laws for any contravention of the Commission Rules in respect of those financial services businesses licensed or authorised under those laws.
 - Level two (Guidance) presents ways of complying with the Regulations and the Commission Rules. A financial services business may adopt other appropriate and effective measures to those set out in Guidance, including policies, procedures and controls established by the group Head Office of the financial services business, so long as it can demonstrate that such measures also achieve compliance with the Regulations and the Commission Rules.
14. When obligations in the Regulations are explained or paraphrased in the Handbook, and where the Commission's Rules are set out in the Handbook, the term must is used, indicating that these provisions are mandatory and subject to the possibility of prosecution (in the case of a contravention of the Regulations) as well as regulatory sanction and any other applicable sanctions.

15. Information on the Regulations and, where appropriate, the text of the most relevant Regulations are shown in a box on a white background at the front of each chapter.
16. The text of the Commission Rules is presented in shaded boxes throughout each chapter of the Handbook for ease of reference.
17. In other cases, i.e. Guidance, the Handbook uses the terms should or may to indicate ways in which the requirements of the Regulations and the Commission Rules may be satisfied, but allowing for alternative means of meeting the requirements. References to “must”, “should” and “may” in the text must therefore be construed accordingly.
18. The Commission will from time to time update the Handbook to reflect new legislation, developments in the finance sector, changes to international standards and good practice and the Regulations.
19. The Handbook is not intended to provide an exhaustive list of appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls to counter money laundering and the financing of terrorism. The structure of the Handbook is such that it permits a financial services business to adopt a risk-based approach appropriate to its particular circumstances. The financial services business should give consideration to additional measures that may be necessary to prevent its exploitation and that of its services/products and delivery channels by persons seeking to carry out money laundering or terrorist financing.

1.4 Risk-Based Approach

20. A risk-based approach is a systematic approach to risk management and involves:
 - risk identification and assessment – taking account of the customer and the business relationship and of the product/service/delivery channel to identify the money laundering and terrorist financing risk to the financial services business;
 - risk mitigation – applying appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls to manage and mitigate the risks identified;
 - risk monitoring – monitoring the effective operation of a financial services business’ policies, procedures and controls; and
 - policies, procedures and controls – having documented policies, procedures and controls to ensure accountability to the board and senior management.
21. As part of the risk-based approach, financial services businesses are actively encouraged by the Commission to develop modern and secure techniques of money management as a means of encouraging the replacement of cash transfers. In addition, the Commission discourages the inappropriate use of cash collections and supports the maintenance of registers by financial services businesses which record the value and reasons for cash collections.

22. It is important to realise that various sectors in the financial services industry – whether in terms of products/services or delivery channel or typical customers, can differ materially. An approach to preventing money laundering and terrorist financing that is appropriate in one sector may be inappropriate in another.
23. A financial services business should be able to take such an approach to the risk of being used for the purposes of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are appropriately designed and implemented and are effectively operated to reduce the risk of the financial services business being used in connection with money laundering or terrorist financing.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 12, which provides for the appointment of a money laundering reporting officer and the reporting of suspicion. See Chapter 10.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See below.

Regulation 15

15. A financial services business must, in addition to complying with the preceding requirements of these Regulations -

- (a) establish such other policies, procedures and controls as may be appropriate and effective for the purposes of forestalling, preventing and detecting money laundering and terrorist financing,
- (b) establish and maintain an effective policy, for which responsibility must be taken by the board, for the review of its compliance with the requirements of these Regulations and such policy shall include provision as to the extent and frequency of such reviews,
- (c) ensure that a review of its compliance with these Regulations is discussed and minuted at a meeting of the board at appropriate intervals, and in considering what is appropriate a financial services business must have regard to the risk taking into account -
 - (i) the size, nature and complexity of the financial services business,
 - (ii) its customers, products and services, and
 - (iii) the ways in which it provides those products and services,
- (d) ensure that any of its branch offices and, where it is a body corporate, any body corporate of which it is the majority shareholder, which, in either case, is a financial services business in any country or territory outside the Bailiwick, complies there with -
 - (i) the requirements of these Regulations, and
 - (ii) any requirements under the law applicable in that country or territory which are consistent with the Financial Action Task Force Recommendations on Money Laundering, to the extent that the law of that country or territory allows and if the law of any country or territory does not so allow in relation to any requirement of the Regulations, the financial services business must notify the Commission accordingly.

2. CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

2.1 Objectives

24. Corporate governance refers to the manner in which boards of directors and senior management oversee the financial services business. This chapter, together with the Regulations, provides the framework for oversight of the policies, procedures and controls of a financial services business to counter money laundering and terrorist financing.

2.2 Corporate Governance

25. References in this chapter to “the Board” must be read as meaning the senior management of the financial services business where the business is not a company, but is, for example, a firm or partnership.

2.3 Board Responsibility for Oversight of Compliance

26. The Board has effective responsibility for compliance with the Regulations and the Handbook and references to compliance in this Handbook generally, are to be taken as references to compliance with the Regulations and the Handbook. In particular the Board must take responsibility for the policy on reviewing compliance and must consider the appropriateness and effectiveness of compliance and the review of compliance at appropriate intervals.
27. A financial services business must also ensure that there are appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place which provide for the Board to meet its obligations relating to compliance review, in particular the Board must:
- ensure that the compliance review policy takes into account the size, nature and complexity of the business and includes a requirement for sample testing of the effectiveness and adequacy of the policies, procedures and controls;
 - consider whether it would be appropriate to maintain a separate audit function to assess the adequacy and effectiveness of the area of compliance;
 - ensure that when a review of compliance is discussed by the Board at appropriate intervals the necessary action is taken to remedy any identified deficiencies;
 - ensure that the financial services business is meeting its obligation that its branches and subsidiaries operating outside the Bailiwick comply with the Regulations and applicable local law which is consistent with the FATF Recommendations;
 - provide adequate resources either from within the financial services business, within the group, or externally to ensure that the AML/CFT policies, procedures and controls of the financial services business are subject to regular monitoring and testing as required by the Regulations;

- provide adequate resources to enable the MLRO to perform his duties; and
- take appropriate measures to keep abreast of and guard against the use of technological developments and new methodologies in money laundering and terrorist financing schemes.

28. The Board may delegate some or all of its duties but must retain responsibility for the review of overall compliance with AML/CFT requirements as required by Regulation 15.

2.3.1 Financial services business conducted outside Guernsey

29. Where a branch or subsidiary is unable to observe the appropriate AML/CFT measures because local laws, Regulations or other measures prohibit this, the Regulations require that a financial services business informs the Commission.

30. A financial services business must be aware that this inability to observe the appropriate AML/CFT measures is particularly likely to occur in countries or territories which do not or insufficiently apply the FATF Recommendations.

2.3.2 Outsourcing

31. Whether a financial services business carries out a function itself, or outsources the function to a third party (either in Guernsey or overseas, or within its group or externally) the financial services business remains responsible for compliance with the Regulations in Guernsey and the requirements of the Handbook. A financial services business cannot contract out of its statutory and regulatory responsibilities to prevent and detect money laundering and terrorist financing.
32. Where a financial services business wishes to outsource functions, it should make an assessment of any potential money laundering and financing of terrorism risk, maintain a record of the assessment, where necessary monitor the perceived risk, and ensure that relevant policies, procedures and controls are and continue to be in place at the outsourced business.
33. Where a financial services business is considering the outsourcing of compliance functions and/or providing the MLRO with additional support from third parties, from elsewhere within the group or externally, then the business should:
- consider and adhere to the Commission's policy on outsourcing;
 - ensure that roles, responsibilities and respective duties are clearly defined and documented; and
 - ensure that the MLRO, any deputy MLRO, other third parties and all employees understand the roles, responsibilities and respective duties of all parties.

2.4 The Money Laundering Reporting Officer

34. In larger financial services businesses, because of their size, nature and complexity, the appointment of one or more appropriately qualified persons as permanent deputy MLROs may be necessary.

35. The MLRO and any deputy MLROs that are appointed must:

- be employed by the financial services business. In the case of managed or administered businesses it is acceptable for an employee of the manager or administrator of the business to be appointed as the MLRO/deputy MLRO;
- be resident in Guernsey;
- be the main point of contact with the Financial Intelligence Service (FIS) in the handling of disclosures;
- have sufficient resources to perform his duties;
- have access to the CDD records;
- be available on a day to day basis (in his absence the role must be performed by a designated deputy MLRO whose name must be communicated to the employees);
- receive full cooperation from all staff;
- report directly to the Board;
- have regular contact with the Board to ensure that the Board is able to satisfy itself that all statutory obligations and provisions in the Handbook are being met and that the financial services business is taking sufficiently robust measures to protect itself against the potential risk of being used for money laundering and terrorist financing; and
- be fully aware of both his obligations and those of the financial services business under the Regulations, the relevant enactments and the Handbook.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 3, which provides for a financial services business to identify and assess the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are effective and appropriate to the assessed risk. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 3

3. (1) A financial services business must-

(a) carry out a suitable and sufficient business risk assessment-

(i) as soon as reasonably practicable after these Regulations come into force, or

(ii) in the case of a financial services business which only becomes such on or after the date these Regulations come into force, as soon as reasonably practicable after it becomes such a business,

(b) regularly review its business risk assessment so as to keep it up to date and, where, as a result of that review, changes to the business risk assessment are required, it must make those changes,

(c) prior to the establishment of a business relationship or the carrying out of an occasional transaction, undertake a risk assessment of that proposed business relationship or occasional transaction,

(d) regularly review any risk assessment carried out under subparagraph (c) so as to keep it up to date and, where changes to that risk assessment are required, it must make those changes, and

(e) ensure that its policies, procedures and controls on forestalling, preventing and detecting money laundering and terrorist financing are appropriate and effective, having regard to the assessed risk.

(2) A financial services business must have regard to any relevant rules and guidance in the Handbook in determining, for the purposes of these Regulations, what constitutes a high or low risk.

3. A RISK-BASED APPROACH

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

3.1 Objectives

36. The Board and senior management of any business are responsible for managing the business effectively. They are in the best position to evaluate all potential risks. The Board and senior management of a financial services business are accustomed to applying proportionate risk-based policies across different aspects of their business.
37. This chapter, together with the Regulations, is designed to assist a financial services business to take such an approach to the risk of its products and services being used for the purposes of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are appropriately designed and implemented and are effectively operated to reduce the risk of the financial services business being used in connection with money laundering and terrorist financing.

3.2 Benefits of a Risk-Based Approach

38. No system of checks will detect and prevent all money laundering or terrorist financing. A risk-based approach will, however, serve to balance the cost burden placed on individual businesses and on their customers with a realistic assessment of the threat of the business being used in connection with money laundering or terrorist financing. It focuses the effort where it is needed and has most impact.
39. To assist the overall objective to prevent the abuse of the financial services sector, a risk-based approach:
 - recognises that the money laundering/terrorist financing threat to a financial services business varies across its customers, countries/territories, products/services and delivery channels;
 - allows the Board and senior management to differentiate between their customers in a way that matches the risk in their particular business;
 - allows the Board and senior management to apply their own approach to the policies, procedures and controls of the financial services business in particular circumstances;
 - helps to produce a more cost-effective system;
 - promotes the prioritisation of effort and activity by reference to the likelihood of money laundering or terrorist financing taking place;
 - reflects experience and proportionality through the tailoring of effort and activity to risk; and

- allows a financial services business to apply the Handbook sensibly and to consider all relevant factors.
40. A risk-based approach takes a number of discrete steps in assessing the most cost-effective and proportionate way to manage the money laundering and terrorist financing risks facing a financial services business by:
- identifying and assessing the money laundering and terrorist financing risks presented by the particular customers, products/services, delivery channels and geographical areas of operation of the financial services business;
 - managing and mitigating the assessed risks by the application of appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls;
 - monitoring and improving the effective operation of the policies, procedures and controls; and
 - documenting, as appropriate, the policies, procedures and controls to ensure accountability to the Board and senior management.

3.3 Identifying and Assessing the Risks

41. A risk-based approach starts with the identification and assessment of the risk that has to be managed. In the context of the Handbook a risk-based approach requires a financial services business to assess the risks of how it might be involved in money laundering or terrorist financing taking into account its customers, products and services and the ways in which it provides those services.
42. A financial services business should ask itself what is the threat of it being used for money laundering or terrorist financing. For example:
- What risk is posed/mitigated by the customers of the financial services business, taking into account:
 - their geographical origin;
 - the complexity of their legal and transaction structures;
 - the way they were introduced to the financial services business; and
 - the unwillingness of customers who are not individuals to give the names of their underlying owners and principals.
 - What risk is posed/mitigated by the products/services offered by the financial services business. For example:
 - whether the value of a transaction is particularly high;
 - whether payments to third parties are allowed;
 - whether the product/service/structure is of particular, or unusual, complexity.

3.4 Business Risk Assessment – Management and Mitigation

43. In order to ensure its policies, procedures and controls on anti-money laundering and terrorist financing are appropriate and effective, having regard to the assessed risk, a financial services business must ask itself what measures it can adopt, and to what extent, to manage and mitigate the identified risks cost-effectively.

44. These measures may, for example, include:

- varying the CDD procedures in respect of customers appropriate to their assessed money laundering and terrorist financing risk;
- requiring the quality of evidence – documentary/electronic/third party assurance – to be of a certain standard;
- obtaining additional customer or business relationship information where this is appropriate to their assessed money laundering or terrorist financing risk, for example, identifying and understanding where a customer’s funds and wealth come from;
- monitoring ongoing CDD, existing customer accounts and ongoing business relationships.

45. The responses to the questions set out in section 3.3, or to similar questions, will be a useful framework for the process whereby a financial services business, having assessed the risk to its business, is able to tailor its policies, procedures and controls on the countering of money laundering and terrorist financing.

3.5 Relationship Risk Assessment – Management and Mitigation

46. The general policy of each financial services business towards the identification and assessment of risk in its customer base should be documented and approved at Board level.

47. For a financial services business to consider the extent of its potential exposure to the risk of money laundering and terrorist financing it must assess the risk of any proposed business relationship or occasional transaction. Based on this assessment, the financial services business must decide whether or not to accept each business relationship and whether or not to accept any instructions to carry out any occasional transactions.

48. In addition, the assessment will allow a financial services business to determine, on a risk basis, the extent of identification information (and other CDD information) that must be obtained, how that information will be verified, and the extent to which the resulting business relationship will be monitored.

49. When assessing the risk of a proposed business relationship or occasional transaction a financial services business must take into consideration information on three areas:

- the identity of the customer, beneficial owners and underlying principals;
- the purpose and intended nature of the business relationship; and
- the type, volume and value of activity that can be expected within the business relationship

50. A financial services business must have documented procedures which will allow it to demonstrate how the assessment of each business relationship has been reached, and which take into account the nature and complexity of its operation.

51. Such procedures may provide for standardised profiles to be used where the financial services business has satisfied itself, on reasonable grounds, that such an approach effectively assesses the risk for each particular business relationship or occasional transaction. However, a financial services business with a diverse customer base or where a wide range of products and services are available must develop a more structured and rigorous system to show that judgement has been exercised on an individual basis rather than on a generic or categorised basis.

3.5.1 Business from Sensitive Sources Notices

52. From time to time the Commission issues Business from Sensitive Sources Notices, Advisory Notices and Warnings which highlight potential risks arising from particular sources of business. A financial services business must ensure that it visits the Commission's website and apprises itself of the available information on a regular basis. Additionally, this information must be taken into consideration when creating a relationship risk profile.

53. Care must be taken when dealing with customers, beneficial owners and underlying principals from countries or territories which are associated with the production, processing and trafficking of illegal drugs. Financial services businesses must also exercise a higher degree of awareness of the potential problems associated with taking on politically sensitive and other customers from countries or territories where bribery and corruption are widely considered to be prevalent.

54. Countries or territories that do not or insufficiently apply the FATF Recommendations and other high risk countries or territories are dealt with in section 5.5 of the Handbook.

3.5.2 Profile indicators

55. This paragraph provides examples of low risk indicators for customers and for products and services which a financial services business may consider when preparing a profile.

(a) Customers – Low Risk Indicators

- customers whose funds are part of a pooled client money account held in the name of an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook);

- customers who are actively employed with a regular source of income which is consistent with the employment being undertaken;
- customers who are locally resident retail customers who have a business relationship which is understood by the financial services business;
- customers with private wealth, where the source is identified as legitimate; and
- customers represented by those whose appointment is subject to court approval or ratification (such as executors).

(b) Products and services – Low Risk Indicators

- products where the provider does not permit third party investment or repayment and the ability to make or receive payments to or from third parties is restricted;
- life insurance policies where the annual premium is no more than £1,000 or a single premium of no more than £2,500;
- insurance policies for pension schemes if there is no surrender clause and the policy cannot be used for collateral; and
- regular payment savings or investment/insurance products.

56. This paragraph provides examples of high risk indicators for customers and for products and services which a financial services business may consider when preparing a profile.

(a) Customers – High Risk Indicators

- complex ownership structures, which can make it easier to conceal underlying beneficial owners and beneficiaries;
- structures where there is no apparent legitimate economic or other rationale;
- an individual who is a Politically Exposed Person (PEP) and/or association with a location which carries a higher exposure to the possibility of corruption;
- an individual who may be regarded as a commercially exposed person because of his or her position as a senior executive of a well known commercial enterprise;
- customers based in, or conducting business in or through, a Non Cooperative Country or Territory (NCCT) or a country or territory with known higher levels of corruption or organised crime, or involved in illegal drug production/processing/distribution, or associated with terrorism;
- customers engaging in business activities which themselves are regarded as sensitive including internet gaming, gambling (internet or otherwise), pornography, arms trading or the provision of military security services;

- customers based in, or conducting business in or through, a country or territory which does not or insufficiently applies the FATF Recommendations;
- involvement of an introducer from a country or territory which does not have an adequate AML/CFT infrastructure;
- where a customer wants a product or service in one country or territory when there are very similar products or services in his home country or territory, and where there is no legitimate economic or other rationale for buying the product or service abroad;
- requests to adopt undue levels of secrecy with a transaction; and
- business relationships where the source of wealth and source of funds cannot be easily verified or where the audit trail has been deliberately broken and/or unnecessarily layered.

(b) Products and Services – High Risk Indicators

- hold mail or retained mail arrangements;
- significant and/or frequent cash transactions;
- high value balances or investments, which are disproportionately large to that particular customer, product or service set;
- bearer shares and other bearer instruments; and
- inappropriate delegation of authority.

57. A financial services business must ensure that where, in a particular customer/product/service/delivery channel combination, any one aspect of the business relationship is considered to carry a high risk of money laundering or terrorist financing, the overall risk of the business relationship is treated as high risk.

3.6 Monitoring the Effectiveness of Policies, Procedures and Controls

58. The financial services business' compliance review policy must make provision for a review of the following elements to ensure their appropriateness and effectiveness:

- the procedures surrounding the products/services offered by the financial services business;
- the CDD requirements in place for establishing a new business relationship;
- staff screening and training; and
- monitoring compliance arrangements.

3.7 Documentation

59. Documentation of the results achieved by taking the steps set out in sections 3.3 to 3.6 will assist the financial services business to demonstrate:

- how it identifies and assesses the risks of being used for money laundering or terrorist financing;
- how it agrees and implements appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls to manage and mitigate the risk;
- how it monitors and improves the effectiveness of its policies, procedures and controls; and
- how it ensures accountability of the Board and senior management on the operation of its policies, procedures and controls process.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 3, which provides for a financial services business to identify and assess the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are effective and appropriate to the assessed risk. See Chapter 3.
- Regulation 4, which provides for the required customer due diligence measures, when they should be applied and to whom they should be applied. See below.
- Regulation 7, which provides for the timing of identification and verification of identity. See below.
- Regulation 8, which makes provisions in relation to anonymous accounts and shell banks. See Chapter 8.
- Regulation 9, which provides for the non-compliance with customer due diligence measures. See below.
- Regulation 10, which provides for the customer due diligence measures to be undertaken in introduced business relationships. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 4

4. (1) A financial services business shall, subject to the following provisions of these Regulations, ensure that the steps in paragraph (3) are carried out -

(a) when carrying out the activities in paragraphs (2)(a) and (b) and in the circumstances in paragraphs (2)(c) and (d), and

(b) in relation to a business relationship established prior to the coming into force of these Regulations -

(i) in respect of which there is maintained an anonymous account or an account which the financial services business knows, or has reasonable cause to suspect, is in a fictitious name, as soon as possible after the coming into force of these Regulations and in any event before such account is used again in any way, and

(ii) where it does not fall within subparagraph (i) and to the extent that such steps have not already been carried out, at appropriate times on a risk-sensitive basis.

(2) The activities and circumstances referred to in paragraph (1) are -

- (a) establishing a business relationship,
 - (b) carrying out an occasional transaction,
 - (c) where the financial services business knows or suspects or has reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting -
 - (i) that, notwithstanding any exemptions or thresholds pursuant to these Regulations, any party to a business relationship is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing, or
 - (ii) that it is carrying out a transaction on behalf of a person, including a beneficial owner or underlying principal, who is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing, and
 - (d) where the financial services business has doubts about the veracity or adequacy of previously obtained identification data.
- (3) The steps referred to in paragraph (1) are that -
- (a) the customer shall be identified and his identity verified using identification data,
 - (b) any person purporting to act on behalf of the customer shall be identified and his identity and his authority to so act shall be verified,
 - (c) the beneficial owner and underlying principal shall be identified and reasonable measures shall be taken to verify such identity using identification data and such measures shall include, in the case of a legal person or legal arrangement, measures to understand the ownership and control structure of the customer,
 - (d) a determination shall be made as to whether the customer is acting on behalf of another person and, if the customer is so acting, reasonable measures shall be taken to obtain sufficient identification data to identify and verify the identity of that other person,
 - (e) information shall be obtained on the purpose and intended nature of each business relationship, and
 - (f) a determination shall be made as to whether the customer, beneficial owner and any underlying principal is a politically exposed person.
- (4) A financial services business must have regard to any relevant rules and guidance in the Handbook in determining, for the purposes of this regulation and regulation 5, what constitutes reasonable measures.

Regulation 7

7. (1) Identification and verification of the identity of any person or legal arrangement pursuant to regulations 4 to 6 must, subject to paragraph (2) and regulation 4(1)(b), be carried out before or during the course of establishing a business relationship or before carrying out an occasional transaction.
- (2) Verification of the identity of the customer and of any beneficial owners and underlying principals may be completed following the establishment of a business relationship provided that -
- (a) it is completed as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter,
 - (b) the need to do so is essential not to interrupt the normal conduct of business, and
 - (c) appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls are in place which operate so as to manage risk.

Regulation 9

9. Where a financial services business can not comply with any of regulation 4(3)(a) to (d) it must -
- (a) in the case of an existing business relationship, terminate that business relationship,
 - (b) in the case of a proposed business relationship or occasional transaction, not enter into that business relationship or carry out that occasional transaction with the customer, and
 - (c) consider whether a disclosure must be made pursuant to Part I of the Disclosure Law or section 15 or 15A of the Terrorism Law.

Regulation 10

10. (1) In the circumstances set out in paragraph (2), a financial services business may accept a written confirmation of identity and other matters from an introducer in relation to the requirements of regulation 4(3)(a) to (e) provided that -
- (a) the financial services business also requires copies of identification data and any other relevant documentation to be made available by the introducer to the financial services business upon request and without delay, and
 - (b) the introducer, subject to limited exceptions provided for in chapter 4 of the Handbook, keeps such identification data and documents.
- (2) The circumstances referred to in paragraph (1) are that the introducer -

- (a) is an Appendix C financial services business, or
 - (b) is either an overseas branch of, or a member of the same group of bodies corporate as, the financial services business with which it is entering into the business relationship (“receiving financial services business”), and -
 - (i) the ultimate parent body corporate of the group of bodies corporate of which both the introducer and the receiving financial services business are members, falls within paragraph (2)(a), and
 - (ii) the introducer and the receiving financial services business are subject to effective policies, procedures and controls on countering money laundering and terrorist financing of that group of bodies corporate.
- (3) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), where reliance is placed upon the introducer the responsibility for complying with the relevant provisions of regulation 4 remains with the receiving financial services business.

4. CUSTOMER DUE DILIGENCE

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

4.1 Objectives

60. This chapter sets out the rules and provides guidance in respect of the CDD procedures to be undertaken by a financial services business in order to meet the CDD requirements of the Regulations in circumstances where the risk of a particular business relationship has been assessed as neither high nor low.

61. Where the risk of a particular business relationship has been assessed as high, the CDD requirements described in this chapter must be read in conjunction with the enhanced CDD requirements described in Chapter 5 which deals with high risk relationships.

62. Where the risk of a particular business relationship has been assessed as low the CDD requirements described in this chapter should be read in conjunction with the requirements of Chapter 6 which provides for circumstances in which reduced or simplified CDD policies, procedures and controls may be applied.

4.2 Customer Due Diligence – Policies, Procedures and Controls

63. Sound CDD procedures are vital for all financial services businesses because they:
- constitute an essential part of risk management, for example, by providing the basis for identifying, assessing, mitigating and managing risk;
 - help to protect the financial services business and the integrity of the financial sector in which it operates by reducing the likelihood of a financial services business becoming a vehicle for, or a victim of, financial crime and terrorist financing;
 - help the financial services business, at the time the CDD is carried out, to take comfort that the customers and other parties included in a business relationship are who they say they are, and that it is appropriate to provide them with the product or service requested; and
 - help the financial services business to identify, during the course of a continuing business relationship, factors which are unusual and which may lead to knowing or suspecting or having reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting that persons involved in a business relationship may be carrying out money laundering or terrorist financing.

4.3 Obligation to Identify and Verify Identity

64. Establishing that any customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal is the person that he claims to be is a combination of being satisfied that:

- a person exists – on the basis of appropriate identification data; and
- the customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal, is that person – by verifying from identification data, satisfactory confirmatory evidence of appropriate components of their identity.

65. A financial services business must have customer take-on policies, procedures and controls in place which provide scope to identify and verify identity to a depth appropriate to the assessed risk of the business relationship and occasional transaction.

66. The policies, procedures and controls must:

- be risk-based to differentiate between what is expected in low risk situations and what is expected in high risk situations and what is expected in situations which are neither high nor low risk;
- impose the least necessary burden on customers, beneficial owners and underlying principals consistent with meeting the requirements of the Regulations and Rules;
- not constrain access to financial services, for example, by those without driving licences or passports; and
- deal sensibly and sensitively with special groups for whom special processes may be appropriate, for example, the elderly and students studying overseas.

67. Financial services businesses must judge, on a risk-based approach, how much identification and verification information to ask for, what to verify, and how to verify, in order to be satisfied as to the identity of a customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal.

68. For customers that are legal persons or legal arrangements, the financial services business must:

- (i) verify the legal status of the legal person or legal arrangement; and
- (ii) obtain information concerning the customer's name, the names of trustees (for trusts), legal form, address, directors (for legal persons), and provisions regulating the power to bind the legal person or arrangement.

69. Where the individual (or business relationship to which he is connected) presents a high risk, a financial services business must consider whether additional verification checks are necessary – see Chapter 5 on high risk relationships.

4.4 Identification and Verification of Customers who are Individuals

70. Sections 4.4 to 4.8 of this chapter provide rules and guidance on how to meet the identification and verification of identity requirements of Regulation 4.
71. Identification and verification of identity of a personal customer is a two-part process. The customer first identifies himself to the financial services business, by supplying a range of personal information. Generally, this information will be provided on some type of application form and the information requested may be used for business purposes over and above verifying the identity of the customer. The second part – the verification – consists of the financial services business verifying some or all of this information through the use of identification data.
72. For business relationships which have been identified as low risk see Chapter 6.

4.4.1 Identification data for individuals

73. A financial services business must, subject to section 6.2.1, collect relevant identification data on an individual, which includes:
 - legal name, any former names (such as maiden name) and any other names used;
 - principal residential address;
 - date and place of birth;
 - nationality;
 - any occupation, public position held and, where appropriate, the name of the employer; and
 - an official personal identification number or other unique identifier contained in an unexpired official document (for example, passport, identification card, residence permit, social security records, driving licence) that bears a photograph of the customer.

4.4.2 Verification of identity – the individual

74. The legal name, address, date and place of birth, nationality and official personal identification number of the individual must be verified.
75. In order to verify the legal name, address, date and place of birth, nationality and official personal identification number of the individual, the following documents are considered to be the best possible, in descending order of acceptability:
 - current passport (providing photographic evidence of identity);
 - current national identity card (providing photographic evidence of identity);
 - armed forces identity card.

76. The examples quoted above are not the only possibilities. In particular countries or territories there may be other documents of an equivalent nature which may be produced as satisfactory evidence of identity of the individual.

4.4.3 Verification of identity – the address

77. The following are considered to be suitable to verify the residential address of individuals:

- a bank/credit card statement or utility bill;
- correspondence from an independent source such as a central or local government department or agency (in Guernsey and Jersey this will include States departments, and parish authorities);
- commercial or electronic databases;
- a letter of introduction from an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook) with which the individual has an existing business relationship and which confirms residential address;
- written communication from an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook) in connection with a product or service purchased by the individual;
- lawyer's confirmation of property purchase, or legal document recognising title to property (low risk relationships and transactions only);
- a personal visit to the residential address; and
- an electoral roll.

78. For Guernsey residents and overseas residents who may encounter difficulties in providing evidence of their residential address, additional documents are listed in sections 4.4.4 and 4.5.3 respectively.

79. Identification data does not have to be in paper form. As well as documentary forms of verification, external electronic databases and other sources such as the internet, information published by government departments and law enforcement authorities, and subscription databases are accessible directly by financial services businesses. The evidential value of electronic checks should depend on the assessed risk of the business relationship.

80. Where a financial services business is not familiar with the form of the evidence of identification data, it should take reasonable measures to satisfy itself that the evidence is genuine.

81. All key documents (or parts thereof) must be understood by an employee of the financial services business, and must be translated into English at the reasonable request of the FIS or the Commission.

82. Where establishing a face-to-face business relationship with a customer who is an individual, reduced or simplified CDD may be carried out as set out in Regulation 6 – see Chapter 6.

4.4.4 Guarding against the financial exclusion of Guernsey residents

83. Certain individuals may encounter difficulties in providing evidence of their Guernsey residential address using the sources identified above. Examples of such individuals include:

- seasonal workers who do not have a permanent residential address in Guernsey;
- individuals living in Guernsey in accommodation provided by their employer, with family (for example, in the case of minors), or in care homes, who may not pay directly for utility services; or
- Guernsey students living in university, college, school, or shared accommodation, who may not pay directly for utility services.

84. Where an individual has a valid reason for being unable to produce the requested documentation, and who would otherwise be excluded from accessing financial services and products, identification procedures should provide for alternative means of verifying an individual's Guernsey residential address. The following are examples of alternative methods of verifying identity:

- a letter from the head of the household at which the individual resides confirming that the applicant lives at that Guernsey address, setting out the relationship between the applicant and the head of the household, together with evidence that the head of the household resides at the address;
- a letter from the residential home or care home confirming residence of the applicant;
- a certificate of lawful residence or a Housing Licence;
- a letter from a director or manager of the Guernsey employer that confirms residence at a stated Guernsey address, and indicates the expected duration of employment. In the case of a seasonal worker, the worker's residential address in his country of origin should also be obtained and, if possible, also verified; or
- in the case of a Guernsey student, a letter from a Guernsey resident parent or a copy of the acceptance letter for a place at the college/university. The student's residential address in Guernsey should also be obtained and, if possible, also verified.

4.5 Non Face-to-Face Individual Customers

85. At a minimum, in situations where non-Guernsey resident customers wish to establish a business relationship and it is not practical to obtain original documentation, a financial services business must obtain copies of identification data, which have been certified by a suitable certifier.

4.5.1 Suitable certifiers

86. Use of a certifier guards against the risk that identification data provided does not correspond to the individual whose identity is to be verified. For certification to be effective, the certifier will need to have met the individual (where certifying evidence of identity containing a photograph) and have seen the original documentation.
87. The following is a list of examples of acceptable persons to certify evidence of identity – this list is not intended to be exhaustive:
- a member of the judiciary, a senior civil servant, or a serving police or customs officer;
 - an officer of an embassy, consulate or high commission of the country or territory of issue of documentary evidence of identity;
 - a lawyer or notary public who is a member of a recognised professional body;
 - an actuary who is a member of a recognised professional body;
 - an accountant who is a member of a recognised professional body;
 - a member of the Institute of Chartered Secretaries and Administrators; or
 - a director or officer of an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook) or of a financial services business subject to group/parent policy where the Head Office is situated in a country or territory listed in Appendix C to the Handbook.
88. A financial services business must give consideration to the suitability of a certifier based on the assessed risk of the business relationship, together with the level of reliance being placed on the certified documents. The financial services business must exercise caution when considering certified copy documents, especially where such documents originate from a country or territory perceived by the financial services business to represent a high risk, or from unregulated entities in any country or territory.
89. Where certified copy documents are accepted, the financial services business must satisfy itself, where possible, that the certifier is appropriate, for example, by satisfying itself that the certifier is not closely related to the person whose identity is being certified.
90. A suitable certifier must certify that he has seen original documentation verifying identity and residential address.
91. The certifier must also sign and date the copy identification data and provide adequate information so that contact can be made with the certifier in the event of a query.

4.5.2 Additional measures

92. Examples of adequate measures required by Regulation 5 in order to mitigate or manage the specific risks associated with non face-to-face business relationships or transactions include:
- requiring additional documents to complement those which are required for face-to-face customers;
 - development of independent contact with the customer and other third parties responsible for the source of funds or company registrations etc.;
 - third party introduction; or
 - requiring the first payment to be carried out through an account in the customer's name with bank situated in a country or territory listed in Appendix C to the Handbook.

4.5.3 Verification of residential address of overseas residents

93. In respect of both face-to-face and non face-to-face business, there may be occasions when an individual resident abroad is unable to provide evidence of his residential address using the means set out in section 4.4.3. Examples of such individuals include residents of countries without postal deliveries and no street addresses, who rely on post office boxes or employers for delivery of mail.
94. Where an individual has a valid reason for being unable to produce more usual documentation to verify residential address, and who would otherwise be excluded from establishing a business relationship with the financial services business, satisfactory verification of address may be established by:
- a letter from a director or officer of a reputable overseas employer that confirms residence at a stated overseas address (or provides detailed directions to locate a place of residence); or
 - any of the means provided in sections 4.4.3 and 6.2.2 without regard to any restrictions imposed on such documents.

4.6 Identification and Verification of Customers who are not Individuals

95. The identification and verification requirements in respect of customers who are not individuals are different from those for individuals, as beneficial owners and underlying principals must also be identified. Although a customer who is not an individual has a legal status which can be verified, each customer also involves a number of individuals, whether as beneficial owners (or equivalent), directors (or equivalent) or underlying principals, who have the power to direct movement of the customer's funds or assets.
96. As identified in the following paragraphs, certain information about the customer must be obtained as a minimum requirement. In addition, on the basis of the assessed money laundering and terrorist financing risk of the particular customer/product/service combination, a financial services business must consider how the identity of the customer and of specific individuals must be verified, and what additional information in respect of the entity must be obtained.

4.6.1 Legal bodies

97. Legal body refers to bodies corporate, foundations, partnerships, associations or other bodies which are not natural persons or legal arrangements. Trust relationships and other legal arrangements are dealt with separately – see sections 4.6.2 to 4.6.4.
98. Where a legal body is either regulated by the Commission or quoted on a regulated market or is a subsidiary of such, then a financial services business may consider the legal body to be the principal to be identified and verified - see section 6.2.3.

99. Where a legal body which is not regulated by the Commission or registered on a regulated market is the customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal a financial services business must:

- identify and verify the identity of the legal body. The identity includes name, any official identification number, date and country or territory of incorporation if applicable;
- identify and verify any registered office address and principal place of business (where different from registered office) where the risk presented by the legal body is other than low;
- identify and verify the individuals ultimately holding a 25% or more interest in the capital or net assets of the legal body;
- identify and verify the individuals, including beneficial owners, underlying principals, directors, authorised signatories or equivalent, with ultimate effective control over the capital or assets of the legal body; and
- verify the legal status of the legal body.

100. When seeking to identify and verify the identity of beneficial owners, underlying principals, the directors and authorised signatories or equivalent in accordance with this section, reference should be made to the identification and verification requirements for personal customers – see sections 4.3, 4.4 and 4.5. It may be appropriate to consider directors with ultimate effective control as being those who have authority to operate an account or to give the financial services business instructions concerning the use or transfer of funds or assets.

101. One or more of the following examples are considered suitable to verify the legal status of the legal body:

- a copy of the Certificate of Incorporation (or equivalent) if applicable;
- a company registry search, if applicable, including confirmation that the legal body has not been, and is not in the process of being, dissolved, struck off, wound up or terminated;

- a copy of the latest audited financial statements;
- a copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association;
- a copy of the Directors' Register;
- a copy of the Shareholders' Register;
- independent information sources, including electronic sources, for example, business information services;
- a copy of the Board Resolution authorising the opening of the account and recording account signatories; and
- a personal visit to the principal place of business.

102. Where the documents provided are copies of the originals the financial services business must ensure they are certified by the company secretary, director, manager or equivalent officer.

103. Where the legal body (or any beneficial owner or underlying principal connected with the legal body) presents a high risk, a financial services business must consider whether additional verification checks are appropriate, for example, obtaining additional information or documentation.

104. A general threshold of 25% is deemed to indicate effective control or ownership. Individuals having ultimate effective control over a legal body will often include directors or equivalent. In the case of partnerships, associations, clubs, societies, charities, church bodies, institutes, mutual and friendly societies, cooperative and provident societies, this will often include members of the governing body or committee plus executives. In the case of foundations, this will include members of the governing council of a foundation and any supervisors.

105. Powers of attorney and similar third party mandates must be given particular attention if there is no evident reason for granting them. In addition, an unnecessarily wide-ranging scope to the mandate must also be given particular attention. In any case, a financial services business must obtain a copy of the power of attorney (or other authority or mandate) that provides the individuals representing the legal body with the right to act on its behalf and verification must be undertaken on the holders of the powers of attorney as well as the customer. A financial services businesses must also ascertain the reason for the granting of the power of attorney.

4.6.2 Legal arrangements

106. There is a wide variety of trusts and other legal arrangements ranging from large, nationally and internationally active organisations subject to a high degree of public scrutiny and transparency, through to trusts set up under testamentary arrangements and trusts established for wealth management purposes.

107. Trusts do not have separate legal personality and therefore form business relationships through their trustees. It is the trustee of the trust who will enter into a business relationship on behalf of the trust and should be considered along with the trust as the customer.

4.6.3 Obligations of trustees

108. When establishing a trust relationship, a financial services business which is acting as a trustee must, in order to identify and verify the identity of its customer and any beneficial owner and underlying principal, identify:
 - the settlor(s);
 - any protector(s) or co-trustee(s); and
 - any beneficiary with a vested interest or any person who is, to the best of the trustee's knowledge, likely to benefit from the trust.
109. Verification of the identity of beneficiaries and persons known to be likely to benefit must, where possible, be undertaken before or during the course of establishing a business relationship. Where it is not possible to do so, verification must be undertaken prior to any distribution of trust assets to (or on behalf of) that beneficiary.
110. The verification of identity of other underlying principals such as settlors, co-trustees and protectors must be carried out before or during the course of establishing a business relationship.
111. When identifying and verifying the identities of beneficiaries and others in accordance with this section, trustees must act in accordance with the identification and verification requirements for personal customers and legal bodies – see sections 4.4 and 4.6.1.
112. Where the relationship is a high risk relationship, trustees must consider whether additional verification checks are appropriate – see Chapter 5 on high risk relationships.

4.6.4 Obligations of financial services businesses dealing with trusts

113. Subject to section 6.6 of the Handbook, a financial services business entering a relationship with a customer which is a trust must:
 - verify the legal status and the name and date of establishment of the trust;
 - verify the identity of the trustees of the trust unless they are themselves subject either to the Handbook or are an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook);
 - require the trustee of the trust to identify and notify it of the names of the underlying principals and beneficial owners, i.e.:
 - the settlor(s) (the initial settlor(s) and any persons subsequently settling funds into the trust);

- any protector(s) or trustee(s); and
- any beneficiary with a vested interest or who is, to the best of the trustee's knowledge, likely to benefit from the trust, and either itself verify the identity of those persons or request the trustee to provide identification data on them, by way of a certificate or summary sheet (see Appendix B for an example); and understand the nature of the trust structure and the nature and purpose of activities undertaken by the structure sufficient to monitor such activities and to fully understand the business relationship.

114. Verification of the identity of beneficiaries and persons known to be likely to benefit must, where possible, be undertaken before or during the course of establishing a business relationship. Where it is not possible to do so, verification must be undertaken prior to any distribution of trust assets to (or on behalf of) that beneficiary.
115. When identifying and verifying the identity of trustees, beneficiaries and others in accordance with this section, financial services businesses must act in accordance with the identification and verification requirements for personal customers and legal bodies – see sections 4.4 and 4.6.1.
116. Where the business relationship (or any underlying principal) is a high risk relationship, a financial services business must consider what additional verification checks are appropriate – see Chapter 5 on high risk relationships.

4.7 Employee benefit schemes, share option plans or pension schemes

117. Where the product or service is an employee benefit scheme or arrangement, an employee share option plan or a pension scheme or arrangement then the sponsoring employer, the trustee and any other person who has control over the business relationship, for example the administrator or the scheme manager, is the principal to be identified and verified in accordance with the requirements of this chapter.

4.8 Acquisition of a Business or Block of Customers

118. There are circumstances where a financial services business may acquire a business with established business relationships or a block of customers, for example, by way of asset purchase.
119. Before taking on this type of business, in order to avoid breaching the Regulations, a financial services business should undertake enquiries on the vendor sufficient to establish the level and the appropriateness of identification data held in relation to the customers and the business relationships of the business to be acquired.
120. A financial services business may consider it appropriate to rely on the information and documentation previously obtained by the vendor where the following criteria are met:
 - the vendor is an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook);

- the financial services business has assessed that the CDD policies, procedures and controls operated by the vendor were satisfactory; and
- the financial services business has obtained from the vendor, identification data for each customer acquired.

121. Where deficiencies in the identification data held are identified (either at the time of transfer or subsequently), the accepting financial services business must determine and implement a programme to remedy any such deficiencies.

4.9 Customer Due Diligence Procedures for Introduced Business Relationships

122. An introduced business relationship is where a financial services business is acting on behalf of one or more third parties who are also its customers and establishes a business relationship on their behalf with another financial services business. Introducer relationships may be business relationships on behalf of a single third party or on behalf of more than one third party, including a pool of such persons.

123. A business relationship established by an introducer on behalf of more than one of its customers is described by the Handbook as a pooled relationship – see section 4.11.

124. It is important to distinguish between introduced business relationships and intermediary business relationships. In the latter relationships, an intermediary meeting the criteria necessary to be considered as such can be treated as the customer – see section 6.6.

125. Regulation 10 provides for the circumstances in which a financial services business may place reliance on an introducer to have verified the identity of the customer, beneficial owners and any underlying principals.

126. In the circumstances set out in Regulation 10, a financial services business may accept written confirmation of identity from the introducer, by way of a certificate or summary sheet(s), detailing elements (a) – (d) of the CDD process (see below).

127. A financial services business must take adequate steps to be satisfied that the introducer will supply, upon request without delay, certified copies or originals of the identification data and other evidence it has collected under the CDD process.

128. The CDD process referred to above in accordance with Regulation 4(3) includes the following elements:

- (a) identifying the customer by name and verifying that customer's identity using identification data;
- (b) identifying any beneficial owner and underlying principal, (in the case of a trust, the beneficiaries as beneficial owners and the settlors, trustees and the protector as underlying principals) and taking reasonable measures to verify the identity of any beneficial owner or underlying principal by name such that the financial institution is satisfied that it knows who the beneficial owner is. For legal persons and legal arrangements this includes financial institutions taking reasonable measures to understand the ownership and control structure of the customer;

- (c) determining whether the customer is acting on behalf of another person and taking reasonable steps to obtain sufficient identification data to identify and verify the identity of that other person; and
- (d) obtaining information on the purpose and intended nature of the business relationship.

129. A financial services business must use a risk-based approach when deciding whether it is appropriate to rely on a certificate or summary sheet from an introducer in accordance with Regulation 10 or whether it considers it necessary to do more. The financial services business must have a programme of testing to ensure that introducers are able to fulfil the requirement that certified copies or originals of the identification data will be provided upon request and without delay. This will involve financial services businesses adopting ongoing procedures to ensure they have the means to obtain that identification data and documentation.

130. In accordance with the Regulations the ultimate responsibility for customer identification and verification will remain, as always, with the financial services business relying on the introducer.

131. A template certificate which may be used by financial services businesses for introduced business is contained within Appendix A.

4.9.1 Group introducers

132. Where a customer is introduced by one part of a financial services group to another, it is not necessary for his identity to be re-verified, provided that:

- the requirements of Regulation 10 are satisfied;
- as a minimum, the financial services business receives a written confirmation from the group introducer in accordance with the requirements for introduced business as detailed in section 4.9 above;
- the financial services business takes adequate steps to satisfy itself that copies of identification data and other relevant documentation relating to CDD requirements will be made available upon request without delay. This requirement would be satisfied if the financial services business has access to the information electronically on the group's database.

133. Group introduced business must not be regarded as intrinsically low risk. As identified in section 4.9 a financial services business must use a risk-based approach when deciding whether it is appropriate to rely on a certificate or summary sheet from a group introducer or whether it considers it necessary to do more bearing in mind that, ultimately, the responsibility for customer identification and verification will remain, as always, with the financial services business relying on the introducer.

4.9.2 Introductions within the Crown Dependencies

134. A Guernsey financial services business may accept introduced business from an institution (“the middle institution”) which has received a certificate/summary sheet from the original introducer, which details the necessary information but where the middle institution does not itself hold copies of identification data and other relevant underlying documentation on the introduced client in the situation described in the next paragraph.

135. When accepting introduced business from a middle institution the following criteria must be met:

- (a) the original introducer is regulated for the type of business being introduced;
- (b) both introducers operate from Guernsey, Jersey or the Isle of Man;
- (c) the certificate/summary sheet provided to the Guernsey financial services business details the necessary information and has been signed by both the original introducer and the middle institution, committing the original introducer to providing copies of identification data and other relevant documentation, upon request without delay, to the Guernsey financial services business; and
- (d) the Guernsey financial services business has a programme of testing to ensure that relevant documentation can be made available from the original introducer upon request without delay.

136. This procedure has the benefits of:

- (a) avoiding the need in these specific circumstances, for more than one financial services business to hold the copies of identification data and other relevant documentation;
- (b) avoiding the need in these specific circumstances, for the provision of two separate certificates/summary sheets; and
- (c) avoiding the establishment of a direct commercial business relationship between the original introducer and the Guernsey financial services business.

4.10 Chains of Introducers

137. Sections 4.9, 4.9.1 and 4.9.2 provide for a financial services business to rely on a certificate or summary sheet from an introducer which has provided an assurance that the introducer retains the verification documentation and other evidence collected under the CDD process.

138. The circumstances described in section 4.9.2 would not be seen by the Commission as a chain because the Guernsey financial services business is aware of the identity of both the introducers and, if necessary, could approach the original introducer directly in order to obtain copies of identification data and other relevant documentation, upon request without delay, should the need arise.

139. Chains of introducers are not permitted, a financial services business must not place reliance on an introducer who forms part of a chain. This avoids a situation whereby, should the middle institution fall away, the receiving financial services business would be left with difficulty in obtaining copies of identification data and other relevant documentation relating to the introduced customer from the original introducer.

4.11 Pooled Bank Accounts

140. Banks often hold pooled accounts on behalf of professional firms and financial services businesses. These accounts contain the funds of more than one client. Where the requirement is for the pooled account to be held on an undisclosed basis, section 6.6 provides information on the CDD requirements of such relationships.

141. Where the pooled account is held on behalf of a professional firm or a financial services business which:

- does not meet the requirements as set out in section 6.6.1; and
- the product or service is not a product or service set out in section 6.6.2, then the bank must identify and verify the identity of the customers, beneficial owners and underlying principals for whom the professional firm or financial services business is acting in accordance with the requirements of Chapter 4 of the Handbook.

4.12 Timing of Identification and Verification of Identity

142. Regulation 7 prescribes the timing for identification and verification of identity.

143. When the circumstances are such that verification of identity of customers, beneficial owners and underlying principals may be completed following the establishment of the business relationship or after carrying out the occasional transaction, a financial services business must have appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place so as to manage the risk which must include:

- establishing that it is not a high risk relationship;
- monitoring by senior management of these business relationships to ensure verification of identity is completed as soon as reasonably practicable;

- ensuring funds received are not passed to third parties; and
- establishing procedures to limit the number, types and/or amount of transactions that can be undertaken.

144. A financial services business should be aware that there may be occasions where the circumstances are such that the business relationship has been established or the occasional transaction has been carried out and the identification and verification procedures cannot be completed. In such circumstances a financial services business should refer to section 4.13 of the Handbook.

4.12.1 Occasional transactions

145. If identity is known, verification of identity is not required in the case of occasional transactions (whether single or linked), below the threshold in the Regulations, unless at any time it appears that two or more transactions, which appear to have been small one-off transactions, are in fact linked and constitute a significant one-off transaction.

4.13 Failure to Complete Customer Due Diligence Procedures

146. When a financial services business has been unable, within a reasonable time frame, to complete CDD procedures in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations and the Handbook it must assess the circumstances and ensure that the appropriate action is undertaken as required by Regulation 9.
147. A financial services business must ensure that where funds have already been received they are returned to the source from which they came and not returned to a third party.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 3, which provides for a financial services business to identify and assess the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are effective and appropriate to the assessed risk. See Chapter 3.
- Regulation 4, which provides for the required customer due diligence measures, when they should be applied and to whom they should be applied. See Chapter 4.
- Regulation 5, which provides for enhanced customer due diligence measures in respect of business relationships and occasional transactions which are identified as high risk. See below.
- Regulation 8, which makes provisions in relation to anonymous accounts and shell banks. See Chapter 8.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 5

5. (1) Where a financial services business is required to carry out customer due diligence, it must also carry out enhanced customer due diligence in relation to the following business relationships or occasional transactions -
- (a) a business relationship or occasional transaction in which the customer or any beneficial owner or underlying principal is a politically exposed person,
 - (b) a business relationship which is-
 - (i) a correspondent banking relationship, or
 - (ii) similar to such a relationship in that it involves the provision of services, which themselves amount to financial services business or facilitate the carrying on of such business, by one financial services business to another,
 - (c) a business relationship or an occasional transaction -
 - (i) where the customer is established or situated in a country or territory that does not apply or insufficiently applies the Financial Action Task Force Recommendations on Money Laundering, or
 - (ii) which the financial services business considers to be a high risk relationship, taking into account any notices or warnings issued from time to time by the Commission, and

(d) a business relationship or an occasional transaction which has been assessed as a high risk relationship pursuant to regulation 3(1)(c).

(2) In paragraph (1) -

(a) “enhanced customer due diligence” means additional steps in relation to identification and verification to those required under regulation 4(3) including taking the following steps -

- (i) considering whether additional identification data needs to be obtained and, where the financial services business considers such data needs to be obtained, obtaining it,
- (ii) considering whether additional aspects of the customer’s identity need to be verified and, where the financial services business considers such aspects need to be verified, verifying them,
- (iii) considering whether additional information is required to understand the purpose and intended nature of each business relationship, and, where the financial services business considers that additional information is so required, obtaining such information,
- (iv) considering whether it is appropriate to take reasonable measures to establish the source of any funds and of the wealth of the customer and any beneficial owner and underlying principal, and, where the financial services business considers that it is so appropriate, taking such measures,
- (v) carrying out more frequent and more extensive ongoing monitoring in accordance with regulation 11, and

(b) “politically exposed person” means -

- (i) a person who has, or has had at any time, a prominent public function or who has been elected or appointed to such a function in a country or territory other than the Bailiwick including, without limitation -
 - (A) heads of state or heads of government,
 - (B) senior politicians and other important officials of political parties,
 - (C) senior government officials,
 - (D) senior members of the judiciary,
 - (E) senior military officers, and
 - (F) senior executives of state owned body corporates,

- (ii) an immediate family member of such a person including, without limitation, a spouse, partner, parent, child, sibling, parent-in-law or grandchild of such a person and in this subparagraph “partner” means a person who is considered by the law of the country or territory in which the relevant public function is held as being equivalent to a spouse, or
 - (iii) a close associate of such a person, including, without limitation -
 - (A) a person who is widely known to maintain a close business relationship with such a person, or
 - (B) a person who is in a position to conduct substantial financial transactions on behalf of such a person.
- (3) Where a business relationship falls within paragraph (1)(a), a financial services business must -
 - (a) ensure that senior management approval is obtained for establishing, or, in the case of an existing business relationship, continuing that relationship,
 - (b) take reasonable measures to establish the source of any funds and of the wealth of the customer and beneficial owner and underlying principal.
- (4) Where the customer was not physically present when a financial services business carried out an activity set out in regulation 4(2)(a) or (b), a financial services business must take adequate measures to compensate for the specific risk arising as a result -
 - (a) when carrying out customer due diligence, and
 - (b) where the activity was establishing a business relationship, when carrying out monitoring of that relationship pursuant to regulation 11.

5. HIGH RISK RELATIONSHIPS

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

5.1 Objectives

148. This chapter provides for the treatment of business relationships which have been assessed as high risk and should be read in conjunction with Chapter 3 of the Handbook, which provides guidance on the assessment of risk and with Chapter 4 which provides for the standard CDD requirements.

5.2 Enhanced Policies, Procedures and Controls

149. Where a financial services business has assessed that the business relationship or occasional transaction is a high risk relationship – whether because of the nature of the customer, the business relationship, or its location, or because of the delivery channel or the product/service features available – the financial services business must ensure that its policies, procedures and controls require enhanced CDD measures to be undertaken as required in Regulation 5.

5.3 Politically Exposed Persons

150. As required by Regulation 4 when carrying out CDD a determination must be made by the financial services business as to whether the customer, beneficial owner and any underlying principal is a PEP.

151. Where a financial services business has determined that the business relationship or occasional transaction is one where the customer or any beneficial owner or underlying principal is a PEP, the financial services business must ensure that it has appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place to ensure compliance with the enhanced due diligence requirements of Regulation 5.

152. In order to determine whether a customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal is a PEP, a financial services business may consider:

- assessing countries which pose the highest risk of corruption – one source of information is the Transparency International Corruption Perception Index;
- establishing who are the current and former holders of prominent public functions within those high risk countries and determining, as far as is reasonably practicable, whether or not customers, beneficial owners or underlying principals have any connections with such individuals – the UN, the European Parliament, the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Group of States Against Corruption may be useful information sources; and
- using commercially available databases.

Website addresses for the above authorities and other useful website links are provided in Appendix H.

5.3.1 Source of funds and source of wealth

153. The source of funds refers to the activity which generates the funds for a business relationship or occasional transaction. Source of wealth is distinct from source of funds, and describes the activities which have generated the total net worth of a person both within and outside a business relationship, i.e. those activities which have generated a customer's net assets and property.
154. Understanding the customer's source of funds and source of wealth are important aspects of CDD especially in relationships with PEPs.

155. A financial services business must, in establishing the source of any funds or wealth, consider the risk implications of the source of the funds and wealth and the geographical sphere of the activities that have generated a customer's source of funds and/or wealth.

5.4 Correspondent Relationships

156. Correspondent banking is the provision of banking services by one bank (the "correspondent bank") to another bank (the "respondent bank"). Used by banks throughout the world, correspondent accounts enable banks to conduct business and provide services that the bank does not offer directly. There are similar relationships in other areas of financial services.

157. In relation to correspondent relationships for banking and those established for securities transactions or funds transfers, whether for the financial services business as principal or for its customers, a financial services business must take additional steps in relation to CDD including those in the bullets below and (where relevant) those in the following paragraph:

- gather sufficient information about a respondent institution to understand fully the nature of the respondent's business;
- determine from publicly available information the reputation of the institution and the quality of supervision, including whether it has been subject to a money laundering or terrorist financing investigation or regulatory action;
- assess the respondent institution's AML/CFT policies, procedures and controls, and ascertaining that they are adequate, appropriate and effective;
- obtain board or senior management approval, i.e. sign off before establishing new correspondent relationships; and
- document the respective AML/CFT responsibilities of each institution.

158. Where a correspondent relationship involves the maintenance of "payable-through accounts", a financial services business must also take steps so that they are satisfied that:

- their customer (the “respondent financial services business”) has performed all the required CDD obligations set out in the Regulations and Chapter 4 of the Handbook on those of its customers that have direct access to the accounts of the correspondent financial services business; and
- the respondent financial services business is able to provide relevant customer identification data upon request to the correspondent financial services business.

159. Financial services businesses must, pursuant to Regulation 15(a), ensure that appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls are in place when establishing correspondent relationships with foreign banks and other institutions.

160. Additionally, a financial services business must have appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place to ensure compliance with the requirements of Regulation 8 in respect of shell banks.

5.5 Countries or Territories that Do Not or Insufficiently Apply the FATF Recommendations and other High Risk Countries or Territories

161. In addition to the enhanced CDD measures required by Regulation 5 for high risk relationships, financial services businesses must, pursuant to Regulation 15(a), have appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place to give special attention to business relationships and transactions with persons (including legal persons and other financial institutions) from or in countries or territories that do not or insufficiently apply the FATF Recommendations and from other countries or territories closely associated with illegal drug production/processing or trafficking, terrorism, terrorist financing and other organised crime.

162. Financial services business must have appropriate and effective procedures in place which include:

- having effective measures in place to ensure they are aware of concerns about weaknesses in the AML/CFT systems of other countries or territories;
- referral to senior management prior to establishing relationships from such countries or territories;
- identifying transactions which (in the context of business relationships and occasional transactions) have no apparent economic or visible lawful purpose and examining the background and purpose of such transactions; and
- recording in writing the findings of such examinations in order to assist the Commission, the FIS and other domestic competent authorities.

163. When determining which countries or territories these policies, procedures and controls should apply to, a financial services business must consider:

- Business from Sensitive Sources Notices issued from time to time by the Commission;
- findings of reports issued by the FATF, FATF-style regional bodies, FATF associate members such as Moneyval and Asia Pacific Group, the Offshore Group of Banking Supervisors, Transparency International, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank; and
- its own experience or the experience of other group entities (where part of a multinational group), which may have indicated weaknesses or trends in other countries or territories.

5.6 Legal Persons able to Issue Bearer Instruments

164. As identified in section 3.5.2 of the Handbook, when assessing the risk of a particular relationship a financial services business must consider whether any legal person who is the customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal has issued or has the potential to issue bearer shares, bearer warrants or bearer negotiable instruments.
165. In circumstances where such a relationship has been identified, and in order to address the specific risks of such a relationship a financial services business must undertake enhanced CDD measures to ensure that the CDD requirements of Regulation 4 are met and that legal persons who have issued or have the potential to issue bearer shares, bearer warrants or bearer negotiable instruments are not misused for money laundering and/or terrorist financing.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 3, which provides for a financial services business to identify and assess the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are effective and appropriate to the assessed risk. See Chapter 3.
- Regulation 4, which provides for the required customer due diligence measures, when they should be applied and to whom they should be applied. See Chapter 4.
- Regulation 6, which provides for reduced or simplified customer due diligence measures to be applied to business relationships which have been identified as being low risk relationships. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 6

6. (1) Where a financial services business is required to carry out customer due diligence in relation to a business relationship or occasional transaction which has been assessed as a low risk relationship pursuant to regulation 3(1)(c), it may, subject to the following provisions of this regulation -
- (a) apply reduced or simplified customer due diligence measures, or
 - (b) treat an intermediary as if it were the customer.
- (2) The discretion in paragraph (1) may only be exercised -
- (a) in accordance with the requirements set out in chapter 6 of the Handbook, and
 - (b) provided that the customer and every beneficial owner and underlying principal is established or situated in the Bailiwick or a country or territory listed in Appendix C to the Handbook.
- (3) For the avoidance of doubt, simplified or reduced customer due diligence shall not be applied -
- (a) where the financial services business knows or suspects or has reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting that any party to a business relationship or any beneficial owner or underlying principal is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing, or
 - (b) in relation to business relationships or occasional transactions where the risk is other than low.

6. LOW RISK RELATIONSHIPS

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

6.1 Objectives

166. This chapter provides for the treatment of relationships which have been assessed pursuant to Regulation 3 as low risk relationships and should be read in conjunction with Chapter 3 of the Handbook, which provides guidance on the assessment of risk and with Chapter 4 which provides for the standard CDD requirements.

6.2 Simplified or Reduced CDD Measures

167. The general rule is that business relationships and occasional transactions are subject to the full range of CDD measures as identified in Chapter 4 of the Handbook, including the requirement to identify and verify the identity of the customer, beneficial owners and any underlying principals. Nevertheless, there are circumstances where the risk of money laundering or terrorist financing is low (for example, locally resident retail customers who have a business relationship which is understood by the financial services business), or where information on the identity of the customer, beneficial owners and underlying principals is publicly available, or where adequate checks and controls exist elsewhere in national systems.
168. In such circumstances a financial services business may consider applying simplified or reduced CDD measures when identifying and verifying the identity of the customer, beneficial owners and underlying principals.

169. A financial services business must ensure that when it becomes aware of circumstances which affect the assessed risk of the business relationship or occasional transaction, a review of the CDD documentation and information held is undertaken to determine whether it remains appropriate to the revised risk of the business relationship or occasional transaction.
170. Where a financial services business has taken a decision to apply reduced or simplified CDD measures, documentary evidence must be retained which reflects the reason for the decision.
171. The possibility of applying simplified or reduced CDD measures does not remove from the financial services business its responsibility for ensuring that the level of CDD required is proportionate to the risk. Where a financial services business has reason to believe that any aspect of the relationship or occasional transaction could be other than low (for example, by virtue of the country or territory or value of the relationship) then simplified or reduced CDD measures must not be applied – see Chapter 3 on the risk-based approach.

6.2.1 Identification data for face-to-face individuals

172. Where establishing a face-to-face business relationship with an individual customer and the requirements for the application of simplified or reduced CDD measures, as set out above are met, a financial services business must obtain at a minimum the following information in relation to an individual customer:

- legal name, any former names (such as maiden name) and any other names used;
- current permanent address; and
- date, place of birth and nationality.

6.2.2 Verification of identity for face-to-face individuals

173. The legal name and either the current permanent address or the date and place of birth of the individual must be verified.

174. In order to verify the legal name and either the current permanent address or date and place of birth, the following documents are considered to be the best possible, in descending order of acceptability:

- current passport (providing photographic evidence of identity);
- current national identity card (providing photographic evidence of identity);
- armed forces identity card;
- current driving licence incorporating photographic evidence of identity;
- birth certificate in conjunction with a verification document listed in section 4.4.3.

6.2.3 Legal bodies registered on a regulated market

175. In order for a financial services business to consider the legal body as the principal to be identified, it must:

- obtain documentation which confirms the legal body is either regulated by the Commission or quoted on a regulated market (or is a wholly owned subsidiary of such a legal body); and
- identify and verify authorised signatories who have authority to operate an account or to give the financial services business instructions concerning the use or transfer of funds or assets.

6.2.4 Appendix C financial services business

176. When the customer has been identified as an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook), and the purpose and intended nature of the relationship is understood, verification of the identity of the financial services business is not required. However, if the financial services business is acting for underlying principals then those underlying principals must be identified and their identity verified in accordance with the requirements of the Handbook.

177. Where a person authorised to act on behalf of a legal body or legal arrangement is acting in the course of employment by an Appendix C financial services business (see definition in Appendix C to the Handbook), it is not necessary to identify and verify the identity of such persons. One such example would be a director (or equivalent) of a Guernsey fiduciary which is acting as trustee.

6.3 Receipt of Funds as Verification of Identity

178. Where the customer, beneficial owner and any underlying principal have been identified and the product or service is such that the relationship or occasional transaction is considered to be a low risk relationship then the receipt of funds may be considered to provide a satisfactory means of verifying identity where:

- all initial and future funds are received from an Appendix C financial services business (see the definition in Appendix C to the Handbook);
- all initial and future funds come from an account in the sole or joint name of the customer or underlying principal;
- payments may only be paid to an account in the customer's name (i.e. no third party payments allowed);
- no payments may be received from third parties;
- no changes are made to the product or service that enable funds to be received from or paid to third parties; and
- no cash withdrawals are permitted other than by the customer or underlying principal on a face-to-face basis where identity can be confirmed and in the case of significant cash transactions, reasons for cash withdrawal are verified.

179. A financial services business must retain documentary evidence to demonstrate the reasonableness of its conclusion that the relationship being established or the occasional transaction being undertaken presents a low risk of money laundering and terrorist financing.

180. A financial services business must ensure that, once a relationship has been established, should any of the above conditions no longer be met then verification of identity is carried out in accordance with Chapter 4 of the Handbook.

181. Should a financial services business have reason to suspect the motives behind a particular transaction or believe that the business is being structured to avoid the standard identification requirements, it must ensure that receipt of funds is not used to verify the identity of the customer, beneficial owner or underlying principal.

6.4 General Insurance – Commercial and Personal Lines business

182. With reference to general insurance – commercial and personal lines business, insurance intermediaries licensed under the Insurance Managers and Insurance Intermediaries (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002 must have appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place to assess, manage and mitigate the risk of the business relationship or occasional transaction.

6.4.1 Identification and verification

183. Where the customer has been identified and the product or service is such that the relationship is considered to present a low risk of money laundering and terrorist financing, verification of identity is not required to be undertaken by insurance intermediaries licensed under the Insurance Managers and Insurance Intermediaries (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law 2002, until such time as a claim or return of premium or any other payment (together a 'Payment') is to be made.

6.4.2 Making payments

184. Subject to the following paragraph, where insurance intermediaries licensed under the Insurance Managers and Insurance Intermediaries (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002 have identified the customer, prior to a Payment being made, verification of the identity of the customer must be completed in order for the licensed insurance intermediary to be satisfied as to the identity of the recipient of such a Payment. Such verification must be appropriate to the assessed risk of the relationship.

185. A licensed insurance intermediary is not required to undertake verification when a Payment is to be made and the relationship is such that:

- business has been introduced to the licensed insurance intermediary by a third party (other than the customer or any beneficial owner or underlying principal), and the licensed insurance intermediary has satisfied itself as to the suitability of the third party; or
- all Payments to the customer, any beneficial owner or underlying principal or third party are made by the insurance company (i.e. not the licensed insurance intermediary) and, therefore, the AML/CFT risk is that of the insurance company rather than the licensed insurance intermediary; or
- where the insurance company has instructed the licensed insurance intermediary to make a return premium payment and the licensed insurance intermediary, on the basis of assessment of risk, has satisfied itself as to the reason for such a payment; or
- payment of claims is approved by an independent professional third party such as a loss adjuster or lawyer acting for the insurer.

186. A licensed insurance intermediary must ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are such that it has sufficient understanding of its business relationships to recognise when a transaction or activity may give rise to a suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing. Each suspicion must be reported to the MLRO in accordance with the requirements of Chapter 10 of this Handbook.

6.5 Non-Guernsey Collective Investment Funds

187. A Guernsey financial services business licensed under the Protection of Investors (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 1987 which is involved in the investor liaison of a collective investment fund established outside Guernsey may, in certain circumstances, place reliance on the administrator of the fund to have undertaken CDD procedures on the investor.

188. Where the financial services business in Guernsey wishes to rely on the CDD procedures of the administrator of the fund, the financial services business must:

- undertake CDD procedures in respect of the administrator to ensure that it is an Appendix C financial services business and that it is regulated and supervised for investment business; and
- require the administrator to provide a written confirmation which:
 - contains adequate assurance that the administrator conducts the necessary CDD procedures in respect of investors in the fund;
 - confirms that the administrator has appropriate risk-grading procedures in place to differentiate between the CDD requirements for high and low risk relationships; and
 - contains an assurance that the administrator will notify the financial services business of any investor in the fund categorised as a PEP.

In addition, the Guernsey financial services business must have a programme for testing and reviewing the CDD procedures of the administrator.

6.6 Intermediary Relationships

189. Section 4.9 of the Handbook provides for the identification and verification requirements in relation to introduced business relationships, i.e. where a financial services business enters into a business relationship on behalf of one or more third parties, who are its customers, with another financial services business.

190. Regulation 6 and sections 6.6.1 and 6.6.2 of the Handbook set out the criteria which must be met for an intermediary relationship to be established. In such circumstances, it will not be necessary to undertake CDD procedures on the intermediary's customers unless the financial services business considers this course of action to be appropriate.

191. Before establishing an intermediary relationship, the financial services business must undertake a risk assessment of the proposed business relationship. Such an assessment will allow the financial services business to consider whether it is appropriate to consider the intermediary as its customer or whether the intermediary should be considered as an introducer and as such be subject to the requirements of section 4.9.

192. Where a relationship has been assessed as being a low risk relationship and where all the requirements of sections 6.6.1 and 6.6.2 are fully met, the financial services business must prepare and retain documentary evidence of the following:

- the adequacy of its process to determine the risk of the business relationship with the intermediary;
- the reasonableness of its conclusions that it is a low risk relationship;
- that it has undertaken CDD procedures in respect of the intermediary – see section 6.6.1; and
- that the relationship relates solely to the provision of financial products or services which meet the requirements of section 6.6.2.

6.6.1 CDD procedures on the intermediary

193. When establishing an intermediary relationship the financial services business in Guernsey must undertake CDD procedures in respect of the intermediary to ensure that the intermediary is:

- an Appendix C financial services business, other than a trust and corporate service provider; or
- a person licensed under the Regulation of Fiduciaries, Administration Businesses and Company Directors, etc. (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2000; or
- a firm of lawyers or estate agents operating in Guernsey, and the funds being pooled are to be used for the purchase or sale of Guernsey real estate or leasehold property situated in Guernsey and where the funds received by the firm have been received from a bank operating in Guernsey or a bank from a country or territory listed in Appendix C of the Handbook; and
- has provided a written confirmation to the financial services business which:
 - confirms that the intermediary has appropriate risk-grading procedures in place to differentiate between the CDD requirements for high and low risk relationships;
 - contains adequate assurance that the intermediary conducts the necessary CDD procedures in respect of its customers, including enhanced CDD measures for PEP and other high risk relationships;
 - contains sufficient information to enable the financial services business to understand the purpose and intended nature of the business relationship; and
 - confirms that the account will only be operated by the intermediary and that the intermediary has ultimate, effective control over the financial product or service.

194. In circumstances where the above criteria are not completely satisfied or are no longer met then the relationship cannot be considered as an intermediary relationship and the financial services business in Guernsey must ensure that appropriate CDD procedures are undertaken in order to comply with the CDD requirements of Regulation 4 and Chapter 4.

6.6.2 Products and services

195. For an intermediary to be considered as the customer of the financial services business, a business relationship must be established to provide for one or more of the following products and services:

Product/service	Intermediaries who may be considered as the customer
Investment of life company funds to back the company's policyholder liabilities where the life company opens an account. If the account has a policy identifier then the bank must require an undertaking to be given by the life company that they are the legal and beneficial owner of the funds and that the policyholder has not been led to believe that he has rights over a bank account in Guernsey.	The life company.
Insurance policies where there is no cash-in value and where professional and independent third parties (such as loss adjusters) are satisfied before payments are made.	The regulated insurance broker.
Reinsurance to an insurer who in turn is issuing policies on a commercial basis only, where the reinsurance contract is arranged exclusively between the reinsurer and a recognised and properly regulated insurer and not between the reinsurer and any other party.	The insurer.
Investments via discretionary or advisory investment managers of their customers' monies into an open-ended collective investment fund regulated by the Commission.	The regulated financial services business, i.e. the discretionary or advisory investment manager.

Product/service	Intermediaries who may be considered as the customer
Investments via discretionary or advisory investment managers of their customers' monies into a Guernsey closed-ended investment fund administered by a financial services business regulated by the Commission.	The regulated financial services business, i.e. the discretionary or advisory investment manager.
A POI licensee, as part of its relationship falling within the scope of the POI Law, with another regulated financial services business: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • undertaking discretionary management • giving advice or undertaking advisory management, or • executing transactions (including the short-term holding of settlement proceeds on deposit). 	The regulated financial services business.
Client accounts held by banks in the name of a licensed fiduciary or a professional firm where the holding of funds in the client account is on a short-term basis and is necessary to facilitate a transaction. Licensed fiduciaries should ensure that any such use is compatible with relevant trust deeds, and applicable legislation and Codes of Practice.	The professional firm or financial services business.

196. The Commission has based this list on risks of potential money laundering and terrorist financing in the context of Guernsey's finance sector.
197. A financial services business should always consider whether it feels the risks would be better managed if the financial services business undertook CDD on the beneficial owner and underlying principal(s) for whom the intermediary is acting rather than treating the intermediary as the customer.

ORDINANCES

In addition to the Regulations, and the Rules and Guidance elsewhere in the Handbook, there are also dedicated Ordinances which provide for the treatment of wire transfers.

Financial services businesses must comply with the Transfer of Funds (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2007 and the parallel Ordinances applicable in Alderney and Sark and should note that the Court will take account of the Rules and also of the Guidance provided in the Handbook in considering compliance with the Ordinances and the Regulations.

The text of the Transfer of Funds (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2007 is set out in Appendix F. That text is definitive. References to an “Ordinance” in this chapter will refer to the Ordinance relevant to the Island from which the institution is operating.

7. WIRE TRANSFERS

A financial services business must comply with the Ordinance, the Regulations and the Rules. In order to assist financial services businesses to understand the contents of the Ordinance, much of the text below paraphrases the policies, procedures and controls which are required by the Ordinance to be established and maintained. Any paraphrasing of that text within this chapter represents the Commission's own explanation of the Ordinance and is for the purposes of information and assistance only. That paraphrasing does not detract from the legal effect of the Ordinance or from their enforceability by the courts. In case of doubt you are advised to consult a Guernsey Advocate.

The paraphrased text is contained within a clear box in order to provide clarity whilst the rules which must be followed in order to meet the requirements of the Ordinance are in shaded boxes.

7.1 Objectives

198. This chapter provides for a payment service provider (PSP) to have clear and comprehensive policies, procedures and controls for ensuring that it has the ability to trace all wire transfers back to the originator of the transfer.

7.2 Scope

199. The requirements summarised in this chapter apply to transfers of funds in any currency sent or received by a PSP established in Guernsey.
200. The requirements do not apply to the transfers set out in the Schedule to the Transfer of Funds Ordinance.
201. References to the British Islands in this chapter are to the area that comprises the United Kingdom, Guernsey, Jersey and the Isle of Man.
202. There are different requirements in relation to transfers between financial services businesses within the British Islands and to transfers where the PSP of the payer or the payee is outside the British Islands.

7.3 Outgoing Transfers

203. Section 7.3.1 of this chapter summarises the procedures to be undertaken for non-account holders and section 7.3.2 summarises the procedures to be undertaken for account holders.

7.3.1 Transfers for non-account holders

204. In accordance with section 2 of the Ordinance, where a transfer of funds is not made from an account and the PSP is seeking to make a transfer in excess of €1,000 in a single transaction or in a linked series of transactions which are together in excess of €1,000, it must obtain customer identification information on the payer and verify and record that information.

205. Where the transfer is at or below the €1,000 threshold then customer identification information on the payer must be obtained and recorded but it is not necessary to verify the customer information.

206. Where the transfer is being made to a PSP in the British Islands, the transfer must, in accordance with section 3(1) of the Ordinance, include a unique identifier (which can trace a transaction back to the customer). If further information, for example, the name and address of the payer is requested by the PSP of the payee, such information must be provided within three working days of the receipt of a request for such information.

207. Where the transfer is being made to a PSP in any other country or territory, section 2 of the Ordinance requires such transfers to include the following customer identification information (complete information):

- the name of the payer;
- a unique identifier (which can trace a transaction back to the customer); and
- the payer's address (residential or postal) which may be substituted with his date and place of birth (where relevant), his customer identification number or national identity number.

208. A customer identification number may be an internal reference number that is created by a PSP which uniquely identifies a payer (rather than an account that is operated for a payer), and which will continue throughout a business relationship, or it may be a number that is contained within an official document.

7.3.2 Transfers for account holders

209. In accordance with section 2 of the Ordinance where a PSP is seeking to make a transfer from an account, PSPs must:

- obtain customer identification information on the payer, verify that information, and record and retain that information; or
- have undertaken customer CDD procedures and retained records in connection with the opening of that account in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations and the Handbook, but where the payer is an existing customer the PSP may deem verification to have taken place if it is appropriate to do so taking into account the risk of money laundering or terrorist financing.

210. Where the transfer is being made to a PSP in the British Islands, section 3 of the Ordinance requires such transfers to include a customer account number. The account number could be, but is not required to be, expressed as the International Bank Account Number (“IBAN”). If further information, for example, the name and address of the payer is requested by the PSP of the payee, such information must be provided by the PSP within three working days of the receipt of a request for such information.

211. The provision which allows transfers being made to a PSP in the British Islands to only include a customer account number arises from technical limitations, not principle, in order to accommodate transfers by domestic systems like BACS which are currently unable to include complete information. Accordingly, where the system used for a transfer in the British Islands has the functionality to carry complete information, it may be appropriate to include it, and thereby reduce the likely incidence of inbound requests from payee PSPs for complete information.

212. Where the transfer is being made to a PSP in any other countries or territories, the transfer must include the following customer identification information:

- the name of the payer;
- the payer’s account number (or IBAN); and
- the payer’s address (residential or postal), which may be substituted with his date and place of birth (where relevant), his customer identification number or national identity number.

213. In the case of a payer that is a company, the transfer must include the address at which the company’s business is conducted. In the case of a payer that is a trustee, a transfer must be accompanied by the address of the trustee.

214. PSPs must ensure that when messaging systems such as SWIFT MT202 (which provide for transfers where both the payer and the payee are PSPs acting on their own behalf), are used on behalf of another financial services business, the transfers are accompanied by the customer identification information necessary to meet the requirements of the Ordinance.

215. Where a PSP is itself the payer (i.e. acting as principal), as will sometimes be the case even for SWIFT MT102 and 103 messages, the requirement to provide name, address, and account number may be met by the provision of the Bank Identifier Code (BIC), although an account number must be included where this is available. Where a Business Entity Identifier (BEI) accompanies a transfer, the account number must always be included.

7.3.3 Batch files – transfers either inside or outside the British Islands

216. In accordance with section 4 of the Ordinance, batch files from a single payer to multiple payees must carry the information identified in sections 7.3.1 and 7.3.2 of this chapter for the payer (which will depend on whether the PSP of a payee is located within or outside the British Islands). However, the individual transfers within the batch file need only carry the payer’s customer account number (or unique customer identifier if there is no account number).

7.3.4 Minimum standards

217. The information requirements of section 7.3 of this chapter are the minimum standards. It is open to PSPs to elect to supply complete information with transfers which are eligible for a reduced information requirement and thereby limit the likely incidence of inbound requests for complete information.
218. In order to ensure that information provided under the Ordinance is also processed in line with the Data Protection (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2001, it may be advisable for a payer PSP to ensure that its terms and conditions of business with each payer include reference to the information that it may provide under the requirements set out in sections 2 and 3 of the Ordinance.

7.4 Incoming Transfers

219. Sections 5 and 6 of the Ordinance require PSPs to have effective policies, procedures and controls for checking that incoming payments contain the required customer identification information (which will depend on whether the payer's PSP is located within or outside the British Islands) – see sections 7.3.1 and 7.3.2 of this chapter.

7.4.1 Detection of missing or incomplete information

220. PSPs will need to be able to identify empty message fields, have procedures in place to detect whether the required customer identification information is missing, for example, by undertaking sample testing to identify fields containing incomplete information on the payer, and, where information is incomplete, to take specified action.
221. SWIFT payments on which mandatory payer information fields are not completed will fail anyway and the payee PSP will not receive the payment. Current SWIFT validation prevents payments being received where the mandatory information is not present at all. However, it is accepted that where the payer information fields are completed with incorrect or meaningless information, or where there is no account number, the payment will pass through the system. SWIFT is currently considering how its validation standards might be improved to respond more effectively to the requirements of FATF Special Recommendation VII. Similar considerations apply to non-SWIFT messaging systems which also validate that a field is populated in accordance with the standards applicable to that system, for example, BACS.

222. Under section 5 of the Ordinance a PSP of a payee must:

- detect whether or not the fields relating to information on the payer have been completed in accordance with the characters or inputs admissible within the conventions of the messaging or payment and settlement system, i.e. ensure that validation rules of whichever messaging or payment system used are being utilised; and

- have effective procedures in place to detect the absence of required information on the payer.

223. PSPs must therefore have in place appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls which subject incoming payment transfers to an appropriate level of post-event random sampling in order to detect non-compliant payments.

224. The level of the sampling must be appropriate to the risk of the financial services business being used in connection with money laundering and terrorist financing and consideration should be given to areas such as:

- the value of the transaction;
- the country or territory of the payer; and
- the history of previous transfers with the PSP of the payer, i.e. whether it has failed previously to comply with the customer identification requirement.

225. Undertaking such an assessment will allow the PSP to make a considered decision as to the appropriate action to be taken.

226. Under section 6 of the Ordinance if a PSP has identified in the course of processing a payment that information on the payer is missing or incomplete it must either;

- reject the transfer; or
- ask for complete information on the payer; or
- take such other steps as the Commission may by order direct,

but must comply with any other relevant provision of an enactment relating to money laundering or terrorist financing if that provision is contrary to the requirement to provide missing or incomplete information or imposes additional requirements, for example, compliance with tipping off provisions.

227. A PSP should take a risk-based approach when considering the most appropriate course of action to be taken in order to meet the requirements of section 6 of the Ordinance. If a decision is made to ask for complete information on the payer, a PSP should also consider, on the basis of risk, making the payment or whether the funds should be held by the PSP until such time as the complete information has been received.

228. Where a payee PSP becomes aware subsequent to processing the payment that information on the payer is missing or incomplete either as a result of random checking or other monitoring mechanisms under the PSP's risk based approach, it must:

- seek the complete information on the payer; and/or
- take any other action which the Commission may by order direct.

229. Where the PSP has sought complete information on the payer and it has not been provided to the PSP within a reasonable time frame, the PSP must consider, on a risk based approach, the most appropriate course of action to be undertaken.

7.4.2 Failure to supply information on a regular basis

230. Section 6 of the Ordinance also sets out the action required where a PSP regularly fails to supply information on the payer required by the Ordinance.

231. In order to comply with the requirements of section 6 of the Ordinance, where a PSP of a payer is identified as having regularly failed to comply with the information requirements, then the PSP of the payee must notify the Commission and the FIS of that fact and take steps to attempt to ensure that such information is supplied. The action may include issuing warnings and setting deadlines, prior to either refusing to accept further transfers from that PSP or deciding whether or not to restrict or terminate the business relationship.

7.4.3 Reporting of suspicion

232. In accordance with section 7 of the Ordinance, where information on the payer accompanying a transfer of funds is missing or incomplete, the PSP of the payee must take this into account in assessing whether the transfer of funds, or any related transaction, is suspicious, and whether a disclosure should be made to the FIS in accordance with the legislative requirements referred to in Chapter 10 of the Handbook.

7.4.4 Record keeping

233. Section 7 of the Ordinance requires the PSP of the payee to retain all records of any information received on the payer of a transfer of funds for five years from the date of the transfer of funds.

234. More information on record keeping is available in Chapter 12 of the Handbook.

7.5 Intermediary Payment Service Providers

235. In accordance with sections 8 and 9 of the Ordinance, intermediary PSPs (for example, those acting as agents for other payment service providers or who provide correspondent banking facilities) must, subject to technical limitations, ensure that all information received on a payer which accompanies a wire transfer is retained with the transfer.

236. Where an intermediary PSP uses a payment system with technical limitations (i.e. which prevents information on the payer accompanying transfers of funds) for transfers, and is aware that payer information is missing or incomplete it must:

- notify the PSP of the payee that the information is missing or incomplete through a procedure agreed between the intermediary and the PSP; and

- retain records of all information received on the payer for 5 years from the date of the transfer.

237. If requested to do so by the PSP of the payee, the intermediary PSP must provide the PSP of the payee with all information it has received on the payer within three working days of receiving the request.

Sections in this Chapter

8.1 Objectives	77
8.2 Assessing the Risk	77
8.3 Customer Due Diligence	77
8.4 Timing	78

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 3, which provides for a financial services business to identify and assess the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and to ensure that its policies, procedures and controls are effective and appropriate to the assessed risk. See Chapter 3.
- Regulation 4, which provides for the required customer due diligence measures, when they should be applied and to whom they should be applied. See Chapter 4.
- Regulation 5, which provides for enhanced customer due diligence measures in respect of business relationships and occasional transactions which have been identified as high risk relationships. See Chapter 5.
- Regulations 6, which provides for reduced or simplified customer due diligence measures to be applied to business relationships which have been identified as being low risk relationships. See Chapter 6.
- Regulation 8, which makes provisions in relation to anonymous accounts and shell banks. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 8

8. (1) A financial services business must, in relation to all customers-
- (a) not set up anonymous accounts or accounts in names which it knows, or has reasonable cause to suspect, to be fictitious, and
 - (b) maintain accounts in a manner which facilitates the meeting of the requirements of these Regulations.
- (2) A financial services business must -
- (a) not enter into, or continue, a correspondent banking relationship with a shell bank, and
 - (b) take appropriate measures to ensure that it does not enter into, or continue, a correspondent banking relationship where the respondent bank is known to permit its accounts to be used by a shell bank.
- (3) In this regulation -
- (a) “consolidated supervision” means supervision by a regulatory authority of all aspects of the business of a group of bodies corporate carried on worldwide, to ensure compliance with-

(i) the Financial Action Task Force Recommendations on Money Laundering; and

(ii) other international requirements,

and in accordance with the Core Principles of Effective Banking Supervision issued by the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision as revised or reissued from time to time,

(b) “physical presence” means the presence of persons involved in a meaningful way in the running and management of the bank which, for the avoidance of doubt, is not satisfied by the presence of a local agent or junior staff, and

(c) “shell bank” means a bank that has no physical presence in the country or territory in which it is incorporated and licensed and which is not a member of a group of bodies corporate which is subject to effective consolidated supervision.

8. EXISTING CUSTOMERS

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

8.1 Objectives

238. This chapter provides for the CDD measures to be undertaken in respect of business relationships which have been established with customers taken on before the coming into force of the Regulations.

8.2 Assessing the Risk

239. As identified in Chapter 3 a risk-based approach starts with the identification and assessment of the risk that has to be managed. Consideration of the information obtained during the business risk assessment will enable a financial services business to create a profile of a particular business relationship.

240. The adoption of a risk-based approach to the CDD requirements of existing customers allows a financial services business to apply the requirements of this chapter sensibly and to consider all relevant factors rather than carrying out a “tick box” approach.

241. Each financial services business is best placed to assess the risk of its own customer base and the extent and nature of the customer due diligence information held or of any additional documentation or information that may be required for existing customers.

8.3 Customer Due Diligence

242. A financial services business must ensure that its policies, procedures and controls in place in respect of existing customers are appropriate and effective and provide for:

- its customers to be identified;
- the assessment of risk of its customer base;
- the level of CDD to be appropriate to the assessed risk of the business relationship;
- the level of CDD, where the business relationship has been identified as a high risk relationship (for example, a PEP relationship), to be sufficient to allow the risk to be managed;
- the business relationship to be understood; and
- the application of such policies, procedures and controls to be based on materiality and risk.

243. A financial services business should be aware that in accordance with Chapters 5 and 6 of the Handbook, enhanced CDD is required for a business relationship which has been identified as a high risk relationship and that where a business relationship has been assessed as being a low risk relationship (for example, locally resident retail customers who have a business relationship which is understood by the financial services business), the information required may be less extensive than that required for new customers.

8.4 Timing

244. Financial services businesses may, as a result of the Commission's Statement on Anti-Money Laundering Standards for Existing Customers, which was issued in June 2004, have already undertaken appropriate and effective CDD procedures which meet the requirements of the Regulations and the Handbook in respect of existing customers. In these circumstances such financial services businesses are not required to introduce a further retrospective know your customer programme.

245. In order to meet the requirements of Regulation 4(1)(b), where a financial services business has not introduced or completed a retrospective know your customer programme, appropriate and effective CDD procedures on existing customers must be undertaken on the basis of materiality and risk at appropriate times.

CHAPTER 9 – MONITORING TRANSACTIONS AND ACTIVITY

Sections in this Chapter

9.1 Objectives	81
9.2 Monitoring Business Relationships and Recognising Suspicious Transactions and Activity	81
9.3 Computerised/Manual Monitoring Methods and Procedures	82
9.4 Ongoing Customer Due Diligence	82

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 11, which provides for the monitoring of transactions and other activity and also for conducting ongoing due diligence. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 11

11. (1) A financial services business shall perform ongoing and effective monitoring of any existing business relationship, which shall include-

(a) reviewing identification data to ensure it is kept up to date and relevant in particular for high risk relationships or customers in respect of whom there is a high risk,

(b) scrutiny of any transactions or other activity, paying particular attention to all -

(i) complex transactions,

(ii) transactions which are both large and unusual, and

(iii) unusual patterns of transactions, which have no apparent economic purpose or no apparent lawful purpose, and

(c) ensuring that the way in which identification data is recorded and stored is such as to facilitate the ongoing monitoring of each business relationship.

(2) The extent of any monitoring carried out under this regulation and the frequency at which it is carried out shall be determined on a risk sensitive basis including whether or not the business relationship is a high risk relationship.

9. MONITORING TRANSACTIONS AND ACTIVITY

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

9.1 Objectives

246. This chapter deals with the requirement for a financial services business to monitor business relationships and to apply scrutiny of unusual, complex or high risk transactions or activity so that money laundering or terrorist financing may be identified and prevented. This may involve requesting additional customer due diligence information.

9.2 Monitoring Business Relationships and Recognising Suspicious Transactions and Activity

247. An unusual transaction or activity may be in a form that is inconsistent with the expected pattern of activity within a particular business relationship, or with the normal business activities for the type of product or service that is being delivered. This may indicate money laundering or terrorist financing activity where the transaction or activity has no apparent economic or visible lawful purpose.

248. Monitoring of the activity of a business relationship must be carried out on the basis of a risk-based approach, with high risk relationships being subjected to an appropriate frequency of scrutiny, which must be greater than may be appropriate for low risk relationships.

249. Transactions and activity to or from jurisdictions specified in the Business from Sensitive Sources Notices, issued by the Commission, must be subject to a greater level of caution and scrutiny.

250. Scrutiny of transactions and activity must be undertaken throughout the course of the business relationship to ensure that the transactions and activity being conducted are consistent with the financial services business' knowledge of the customer, their business, source of funds and source of wealth.

251. A financial services business when monitoring complex, unusual and large transactions or unusual patterns of transactions must examine the background and purpose of such transactions and record such findings in writing.

252. The provision of sufficient and appropriate information and training for staff enables them to recognise potential money laundering and terrorist financing transactions and other activity. Staff screening and training are covered in Chapter 11.

253. Reporting of knowledge, suspicion or reasonable grounds for suspicion of money laundering and terrorist financing is addressed in Chapter 10.

9.3 Computerised/Manual Monitoring Methods and Procedures

254. Ongoing monitoring of business relationships, including the transactions and other activity carried out as part of that relationship, either through manual procedures or computerised systems, is one of the most important aspects of effective ongoing CDD procedures. A financial services business can usually only determine when it might have reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting that money laundering or terrorist financing is occurring if they have the means of assessing when a transaction or activity falls outside their expectations for a particular business relationship. The type of monitoring procedures introduced will depend on a number of factors, including the size and nature of the financial services business and the complexity and volume of the transactions or activity.
255. Exception procedures and reports can provide a simple but effective means of monitoring all transactions to or from and activity involving:
- particular geographical locations;
 - particular products/services/accounts; or
 - any transaction or activity that falls outside of predetermined parameters within a given time frame.
256. Financial services businesses should tailor the parameters to the nature and level of their transactions and activity and to the assessed risk of the business relationships that are being monitored.
257. A larger or more complex financial services business may also demonstrate ongoing monitoring through the use of computerised systems. Such systems may be used to facilitate the monitoring of significant volumes of transactions or, where the financial services business operates in an e-commerce environment, where the opportunity for human scrutiny of individual transactions and activity is limited.
258. A financial services business should be aware that the use of computerised monitoring systems does not remove the requirement for staff to remain vigilant. It is essential to continue to attach importance to human alertness. Such factors as staff intuition; direct exposure to a customer, face-to-face or on the telephone; and the ability, through practical experience, to recognise transactions and activities that do not seem to have a lawful purpose or make sense for that customer, cannot be automated.

9.4. Ongoing Customer Due Diligence

259. The requirement to conduct ongoing CDD ensures that a financial services business is aware of any changes in the development of the business relationship. The extent of the ongoing CDD measures must be determined on a risk sensitive basis but a financial services business must bear in mind that as the business relationship develops, the risk of money laundering or terrorist financing may change.

260. It should be noted that it is not necessary to re-verify or obtain current documentation unless an assessment has been made that the identification data held is not adequate for the assessed risk of the business relationship.
261. In order to reduce the burden on customers in low risk business relationships, trigger events, for example, the opening of a new account or the purchase of a further product, may present a convenient opportunity to review the CDD information held.

ADDITIONAL LEGISLATION

In addition to the Regulations, rules and guidance in the Handbook there are two other pieces of legislation which have specific requirements with regard to the reporting and disclosure of suspicions.

Financial services businesses must comply with the relevant provisions of the Disclosure (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2007 and the Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002, and should note that the Court will take account of the Rules and also of the Guidance provided in the Handbook in considering compliance with the disclosure requirements of this legislation and the Regulations.

The requirements of the legislation to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

Section 1 and 2 of the Disclosure (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2007. See below.

Sections 15 and 15A of the Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002. See below.

- (b) by (or by a representative of) a person seeking legal advice from the adviser, or
- (c) by a person in connection with legal proceedings or contemplated legal proceedings.

(12) But subsection (11) does not apply to information or another matter which is communicated or given with a view to furthering a criminal purpose.

(13) A disclosure to a nominated officer or to a police officer does not contravene any obligation as to confidentiality or other restriction on the disclosure of information imposed by statute, contract or otherwise.

(5) The required disclosure is a disclosure of the information or other matter -

- (a) to a police officer,
- (b) in the form and manner (if any) prescribed for the purposes of this subsection by regulations under section 11.

- (6) But a person does not commit an offence under this section if he has a reasonable excuse for not disclosing the information or other matter.
- (7) In deciding whether a person committed an offence under this section the court must consider whether he followed any relevant rules or guidance which were at the time concerned -
 - (a) made or issued by the Commission under section 15 or any other enactment, and
 - (b) published in a manner it approved as appropriate in its opinion to bring the rules or guidance to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it.

- (8) A disclosure to a police officer does not contravene any obligation as to confidentiality or other restriction on the disclosure of information imposed by statute, contract or otherwise.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 12, which provides for the reporting and disclosing of suspicion. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 12

12. A financial services business shall -

- (a) appoint a person of at least management level as the money laundering reporting officer and provide the name and title of that person to the Commission and a police officer as soon as is reasonably practicable and, in any event, within fourteen days starting from the date of that person's appointment,
- (b) nominate another person to receive disclosures, under Part I of the Disclosure Law and section 15 of the Terrorism Law ("nominated officer"), in the absence of the money laundering reporting officer, and ensure that any relevant employee is aware of the name of that nominated officer,
- (c) ensure that where a relevant employee, other than the money laundering reporting officer, is required to make a disclosure under Part I of the Disclosure Law or section 15 of the Terrorism Law, that this is done by way of a report to the money laundering reporting officer, or, in his absence, to a nominated officer,
- (d) ensure that the money laundering reporting officer, or in his absence a nominated officer, in determining whether or not he is required to make a disclosure under Part I of the Disclosure Law or section 15A of the Terrorism Law, takes into account all relevant information,
- (e) ensure that the money laundering reporting officer, or, in his absence, a nominated officer, is given prompt access to any other information which may be of assistance to him in considering any report, and
- (f) ensure that it establishes and maintains such other appropriate and effective procedures and controls as are necessary to ensure compliance with requirements to make disclosures under Part I of the Disclosure Law and sections 15 and 15A of the Terrorism Law.

10. REPORTING SUSPICION

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

10.1 Objectives

262. This chapter outlines the statutory provisions concerning disclosure of information, the policies, procedures and controls necessary for reporting and disclosing suspicion and the provision of information on the reporting and the disclosing of suspicion.
263. References in this chapter to a transaction or activity include an attempted or proposed transaction or activity.
264. References in this chapter to any suspicion are references to suspicion of either money laundering or terrorist financing.

10.2 Obligation to Report

265. A suspicion may be based upon a transaction or activity which is inconsistent with a customer's known legitimate business, activities or lifestyle or with the normal business for that type of product/service.
266. It follows that an important precondition of recognition of a suspicious transaction or activity is for the financial services business to know enough about the business relationship to recognise that a transaction or activity is unusual. Such knowledge would arise mainly from complying with the monitoring and ongoing customer due diligence requirements in Regulation 11 – see Chapter 9. Suspicion need not only be based on transactions or activities within the business relationship, but also on information from other sources, including the media, intermediaries, or the customer himself.

267. A financial services business must establish appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in order to facilitate compliance with the reporting requirements of the Regulations and the relevant enactments to ensure that:

- each suspicion is reported to the MLRO regardless of the amount involved and regardless of whether, amongst other things, it is thought to involve tax matters in a manner sufficient to satisfy the statutory obligations of the employee;
- the MLRO promptly considers each such internal suspicion report and determines whether it results in there being knowledge or suspicion or reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting that someone is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing;
- where the MLRO has determined that an internal suspicion report does result in there being such knowledge or suspicion or reasonable grounds for so knowing or suspecting that he discloses that suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing to the FIS – see section 10.4; and

- where, during the CDD process, a financial services business knows or suspects that someone is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing a disclosure is made to the FIS.

268. The Board of a financial services business and all relevant employees should appreciate and understand the significance of what is often referred to as the objective test of suspicion. It is a criminal offence for anyone employed by a financial services business to fail to report where they have knowledge, suspicion or reasonable grounds for knowledge or suspicion that another person is laundering the proceeds of any criminal conduct or is carrying out terrorist financing.
269. What may constitute reasonable grounds for knowledge or suspicion will be determined from facts or circumstances from which an honest and reasonable person engaged in a financial services business would have inferred knowledge or formed the suspicion that another was engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing.
270. A transaction or activity which appears unusual, is not necessarily suspicious. An unusual transaction or activity is, in the first instance, likely to be a basis for further enquiry, which may in turn require judgement as to whether it is suspicious. For example, an out of the ordinary transaction or activity within a business relationship should prompt the financial services business to conduct enquiries about the transaction or activity – see section 10.6 on tipping off.
271. There may be a number of reasons why the financial services business is not entirely happy with CDD information or where the financial services business otherwise needs to ask questions. Enquiries of their customer should be made where the financial services business has queries, regardless of their level of suspicion, to either assist them in formulating a suspicion, or conversely to negate it, having due regard to the tipping off provisions.

272. Although a financial services business is not expected to conduct the kind of investigation carried out by law enforcement agencies, it must act responsibly and ask questions to satisfy any gaps in the CDD or its understanding of a particular transaction or activity or proposed transaction or activity.

10.3 Internal Reporting

273. A financial services business must have appropriate and effective internal reporting policies, procedures and controls to ensure that:
- all employees of the financial services business know to whom within the financial services business and in what format their suspicions must be reported;
 - all suspicion reports are considered by the MLRO and where the MLRO makes a decision not to make a disclosure to the FIS, the reasons for the decision not to disclose are documented and retained; and

- once a disclosure has been made to the FIS, the MLRO immediately informs the FIS where subsequent, relevant information or documentation is received.

10.4 Form and Manner of Disclosing to the FIS

274. Prior to making a disclosure to the FIS the financial services business should consider all available options in respect of the business relationship.

275. Reports of suspicion of money laundering (including drug money laundering) must be disclosed under the provisions of the Disclosure (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2007 and suspicions relating to terrorism must be disclosed under the Terrorism and Crime (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002 as amended. Both of these laws require that information contained in internal reports made to a MLRO is disclosed to the FIS where the MLRO knows or suspects or has reasonable grounds for knowing or suspecting as a result of the report, that a person is engaged in money laundering or terrorist financing.

276. Disclosures must to be made in the standard form set out in Appendix D2. The disclosure may be delivered by post, fax or e-mail and its receipt will be acknowledged by the FIS in writing. The means of delivery is at the discretion of the financial services business and subject to its security protocols. If a disclosure is sent by fax or e-mail there is no requirement to send a duplicate disclosure via post.

277. The financial services business should provide as much information and documentation (for example, statements, contract notes, correspondence, minutes, transcripts, etc.) as possible to demonstrate why suspicion has been raised and to enable the FIS to fully understand the purpose and intended nature of the business relationship.

278. When considering the provision of information to the FIS a financial services business should be aware of the Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Guernsey) Law, 1995, the Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Alderney) Law, 1998 and the Money Laundering (Disclosure of Information) (Sark) Law, 2001 which state:

“No obligation of secrecy or confidence or other restriction on the disclosure of information to which any person may be subject, whether arising by statute, contract or otherwise, shall be regarded as being contravened by reason of disclosure by that person or by any of his officers, servants or agents to an officer of:

- (a) any reasonable suspicion or belief that any money or other property is, or is derived from or represents, the proceeds of criminal activity;
- (b) any information or document relating to:
 - (i) any such money or property;
 - (ii) any transaction concerning it;

(iii) the parties to any such transaction; and

(c) any fact or matter upon which any such suspicion or belief is based.”

279. In the context of these three laws a financial services business should note that the reference to an “officer” includes a police or customs officer, or an officer of the Commission – see section 10.8.

280. Where the MLRO considers that a disclosure should be made urgently (for example, where the customer’s financial services product is already part of a current investigation), initial notification to the FIS may be made by telephone.

281. In addition to the requirements of Regulation 14 for the keeping of records of internal reports a financial services business must also maintain a register of all disclosures made to the FIS pursuant to this paragraph. Such register must contain details of:

- the date of the disclosure;
- the person who made the disclosure;
- the person(s) to whom the disclosure was forwarded; and
- a reference by which supporting evidence is identifiable.

282. To aid communication with the FIS, it may be useful for a financial services business to cross reference their files with the reference number provided by the FIS.

283. The register of disclosures should be reviewed and updated periodically to reflect the current position of each disclosure and of the business relationship. The financial services business should at the time of the review consider whether further communication with the FIS is appropriate.

284. A financial services business must consider whether the nature of the particular suspicion which has been triggered is such that all the assets of the business relationship are potentially suspect. Where it is not possible to separate the assets which are suspicious from the legitimate funds, it will be necessary to carefully consider all future transactions or activities, and the nature of the continuing relationship and to implement an appropriate risk based strategy.

285. It is for each financial services business (or group) to consider whether (in addition to any disclosure made in Guernsey) its vigilance policy should require the MLRO to report suspicions within the financial services business (or group), for example, to the compliance department at Head Office. A report to Head Office, the parent or group does not remove the requirement also to disclose suspicions to the FIS.

10.5 The Response of the FIS

286. The receipt of a disclosure will be promptly acknowledged in writing by the FIS.

287. If the disclosure does not refer to a specific transaction or activity that could constitute a money laundering or terrorist financing offence, the response from the FIS will simply acknowledge receipt of the disclosure.
288. If the disclosure does include reference to a specific transaction or activity that has led to the suspicion and ultimately a disclosure, the financial services business should indicate whether or not it intends to carry out the transaction or activity, and if so request consent to continue with the particular transaction or activity. On receipt of such a request the FIS will consider whether or not it may give consent under the relevant provisions. Any consent given will be in writing and will specify the transaction or activity to which the consent relates. In urgent matters, consent may be given orally by the FIS, but will be followed by written confirmation.
289. In the event that consent is not given, the FIS will discuss with the financial services business the implications and will offer what assistance it can in deciding the most appropriate course of action to be taken thereafter. Any such discussion with the FIS does not constitute legal advice. If deemed appropriate, legal advice should be sought by the financial services business from its Advocate or other legal adviser.
290. Access to disclosures will be restricted to appropriate authorities and any information provided by the FIS emanating from such disclosures will normally be in a sanitised format and will not include the identity of the source. In the event of a prosecution, the source of the information will be protected as far as the law allows.
291. The FIS may, on occasions, seek additional information from the disclosing financial services business. Such additional information includes financial and administrative information which may provide clarification of the grounds of suspicion and allow the person to whom the disclosure has been made to make a judgement as to how to proceed.
292. In addition, the FIS will, so far as is possible, supply on request and through planned initiatives information as to the current status of any investigations emanating from a disclosure as well as more general information regarding identified trends and indicators.

10.6 Communicating with Customers and Tipping Off

293. Once an internal suspicion report to a MLRO or a disclosure to the FIS has been made, where required under the Disclosure Law or Terrorism and Crime Law, it is a criminal offence for anyone to release information which is likely to prejudice an investigation such as the fact that a disclosure or related information is being provided to the FIS.
294. Reasonable enquiries of a customer, conducted in a discreet manner, regarding the background to a transaction or activity which has given rise to the suspicion is prudent practice, forms an integral part of CDD and ongoing monitoring, and should not give rise to tipping off. For an offence to have been committed, tipping off would invariably have been undertaken knowing or suspecting a disclosure had been made and the offence would be committed where information was disclosed to, as opposed to requested from, a third party.

295. Policies, procedures and controls must enable a MLRO to consider whether it is appropriate to disclose a suspicion or to make a request for consent or whether in assessing the circumstances, it would in the first instance be more appropriate to obtain more information to assist him with this process. Such procedures must also provide for the MLRO to consider whether it would be more appropriate to decline to proceed with the requested act and to give due thought to the future of the business relationship as a whole.

296. There will be occasions where it is feasible for the financial services business to agree a joint strategy with the FIS, but the FIS will not seek to influence what is ultimately a decision for the financial services business.

10.7 Terminating a Business Relationship

297. Whether or not to terminate a business relationship is a commercial decision except where required by legislation, for example, where the financial services business cannot obtain required CDD information (see Chapter 4 and Regulation 9) or where continuing with the relationship would involve the financial services business committing an offence under the relevant provisions.

298. Where a financial services business makes a decision to terminate a business relationship after it has made a disclosure or requested consent, it should update the FIS and consider whether it is necessary to request consent under the relevant legislative requirements in respect of any transaction or activity necessary to terminate the business relationship.

10.8 Reports to the Commission

299. In addition to making a disclosure to the FIS, financial services businesses should at the same time make such disclosures to the Commission, where:

- the policies, procedures and controls of the financial services business failed to detect the transaction or activity and the matter had been brought to the attention of the financial services business in another way (for example, by the FIS) – unless the FIS has specifically requested that such information should not be communicated to another person;
- the transaction or activity may present a significant reputational risk to Guernsey and/or the financial services business;
- it is suspected that an employee of the financial services business was involved; or
- an employee of the financial services business has been dismissed for serious breaches of its internal policies, procedures and controls.

300. Disclosures to the Commission should be in the same format and contain the same information as those provided to the FIS.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 13, which provides for procedures to be undertaken by a financial services business when hiring employees and for the requirements of training relevant employees. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 13

13. (1) A financial services business shall maintain appropriate and effective procedures, when hiring employees, for the purpose of ensuring high standards of employee probity and competence.
- (2) A financial services business shall ensure that relevant employees receive comprehensive ongoing training in -
- (a) the relevant enactments, these Regulations and the Handbook,
 - (b) the personal obligations of employees and their potential criminal liability under these Regulations and the relevant enactments,
 - (c) the implications of non-compliance by employees with any rules or guidance made for the purposes of these Regulations, and
 - (d) its policies, procedures and controls for the purposes of forestalling, preventing and detecting money laundering and terrorist financing.
- (3) A financial services business shall identify relevant employees who, in view of their particular responsibilities, should receive additional and ongoing training, appropriate to their roles, in the matters set out in paragraph (2) and must provide such additional training.

11. EMPLOYEE SCREENING AND TRAINING

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

11.1 Objectives

301. One of the most important tools available to a financial services business to assist in the prevention and detection of money laundering is to have staff who are alert to the potential risks of money laundering and terrorist financing and who are well trained in the requirements concerning CDD and the identification of unusual activity, which may prove to be suspicious.

11.2 Screening of Employees

302. In order for a financial services business to ensure that employees are of the required standard of competence and probity, which will depend on the role of the employee, consideration must be given to:

- obtaining and confirming appropriate references at the time of recruitment;
- requesting information from the employee with regard to any regulatory action taken against him or action taken by a professional body; and
- requesting information from the employee with regard to any criminal convictions and the provision of a check of his criminal record (subject to the Rehabilitation of Offenders (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002).

303. The term employee as defined in the Regulations includes any person working for a financial services business, i.e. not only individuals working under a contract of employment (including on a temporary basis), but also those working under a contract for services. Where persons who are employees of any third parties carry out work in relation to financial services business under an outsourcing agreement, the financial services business must have procedures to satisfy itself as to the effectiveness of the screening procedures of the third party in ensuring employee competence and probity.

11.3 Relevant Employees

304. The requirements of the Regulations concerning training apply to employees whose duties relate to actual financial services business and any directors or managers (hereafter referred to as relevant employees), and not necessarily to all employees of a financial services business.
305. When determining whether an employee is a relevant employee, for the purposes of the Handbook a financial services business may take into account the following:

- whether the employee is undertaking any customer facing functions, or handles or is responsible for the handling of business relationships or transactions;
- whether the employee is directly supporting a colleague who carries out any of the above functions;
- whether an employee is otherwise likely to be placed in a position where he might see or hear anything which may lead to a suspicion; and
- whether an employee's role has changed to involve any of the functions mentioned above.

11.4 Employee Training

306. The Board must be aware of the obligations of the financial services business in relation to staff screening and training.

307. A financial services business must, in ensuring that relevant employees receive the ongoing training required under the Regulations, in particular ensure that they are kept informed of:

- the CDD requirements and the requirements for the internal and external reporting of suspicion;
- the criminal and regulatory sanctions in place for failing to report information in accordance with policies, procedures and controls;
- the identity and responsibilities of the MLRO;
- the principal vulnerabilities of the products and services offered by the financial services business; and
- new developments, including information on current money laundering and terrorist financing techniques, methods, trends and typologies.

308. A financial services business must in providing the training required under the Regulations:

- provide appropriate training to enable relevant employees adequately and responsibly to assess the information that is required for them to judge whether an activity or business relationship is suspicious in the circumstances;
- provide relevant employees with a document outlining their own obligations and potential criminal liability and those of the financial services business under the relevant enactments and the Regulations;
- prepare and provide relevant employees with a copy, in any format, of the financial services business' policies, procedures and controls manual for AML/CFT; and
- ensure its employees are fully aware of legislative requirements.

11.4.1 The MLRO

309. A financial service business is required under the Regulations to identify particular relevant employees who in view of their roles should receive additional training and it must provide such training. Such employees must include the MLRO and any nominated persons or deputies to whom suspicion reports may be made. The additional training must include in depth and specific training with regard to;

- the handling and reporting of internal suspicion reports;
- the handling of production and restraining orders;
- liaising with law enforcement agencies; and
- the management of the risk of tipping off.

310. Please refer to section 2.4 for information on the role and responsibilities of the MLRO.

11.4.2 The Board and senior management

311. The Board and senior management are responsible for the effectiveness and appropriateness of the financial services business' policies, procedures and controls to counter money laundering and terrorist financing. As such they must be identified as relevant employees to whom additional training must be given in order that they remain competent to give adequate and informed consideration to the evaluation of the effectiveness of those policies, procedures and controls.

312. In addition to the general training provided to relevant employees a detailed level of additional training must be provided to the Board and senior management to provide a clear explanation and understanding of:

- the relevant enactments and the Regulations and information on the offences and the related penalties, including potential director and shareholder liability;
- the CDD and record keeping requirements; and
- the internal and external suspicion reporting procedures.

11.5 Timing and Frequency of Training

313. As part of providing comprehensive ongoing training, appropriate training must be provided for all new relevant employees prior to them becoming actively involved in day-to-day operations. Thereafter, the frequency of training should be determined on a risk-based approach, with those employees with responsibility for the handling of business relationships or transactions receiving more frequent training.

314. Such programmes may include, as well as the matters required in the Regulations:

- the principal vulnerabilities of any new products, services or delivery channels offered;

- the nature of terrorism funding and terrorist activity, in order that staff are alert to customer transactions or activities that might be terrorist-related;
- information on the changing behaviour and practices amongst money launderers and those financing terrorism;
- emerging typologies; and
- the policies, procedures and controls applied by the financial services business to the assessment of risk and the requirements for dealing with high risk relationships.

315. At a minimum, training must be provided to all relevant employees at least every two years but will need to be more frequent to meet the requirements in the Regulations if new legislation or significant changes to the Handbook are introduced or where there have been significant technological developments within the financial services business.

11.6 The Relevance of Training

316. Whilst there is no single or definitive way to conduct staff training for AML/CFT purposes, the critical requirement is that staff training must be adequate and relevant to those being trained and the training messages should reflect good practice. The training should equip staff in respect of their responsibilities.

317. Financial services businesses must put in place mechanisms to measure the effectiveness of the AML/CFT training.

318. The guiding principle of all AML/CFT training should be to encourage employees, irrespective of their level of seniority, to understand and accept their responsibility to contribute to the protection of the financial services business against the risk of money laundering and terrorist financing.

319. The precise approach will depend on the size, nature and complexity of the financial services business. Classroom training, videos and technology-based training programmes can all be used to good effect depending on the environment and the number of people to be trained.

320. Training should highlight to employees the importance of the contribution that they can individually make to the prevention and detection of money laundering and terrorist financing. There is a tendency, in particular on the part of more junior employees, to mistakenly believe that the role they play is less pivotal than that of more senior colleagues. Such an attitude can lead to failures to disseminate important information because of mistaken assumptions that the information will have already been identified and dealt with by more senior colleagues.

REGULATIONS

The requirements of the Regulations to which the rules and guidance in this chapter particularly relate are:

- Regulation 14, which provides for the record keeping requirements of a financial services business. See below.
- Regulation 15, which makes provisions in relation to the review of compliance. See Chapter 2.

Regulation 14

14. (1) A financial services business shall keep-

- (a) a transaction document and any customer due diligence information, or
- (b) a copy thereof,

for the minimum retention period.

(2) Where a financial services business is required by any enactment, rule of law or court order to provide a transaction document or any customer due diligence information to any person before the end of the minimum retention period, the financial services business shall-

- (a) keep a copy of the transaction document or customer due diligence information until the period has ended or the original is returned, whichever occurs first, and
- (b) maintain a register of transaction documents and customer due diligence information so provided.

(3) A financial services business shall also keep records of -

- (a) any reports made to a money laundering reporting officer as referred to in regulation 12 and of any disclosure made under Part I of the Disclosure Law or section 15 or 15A of the Terrorism Law made other than by way of a report to the money laundering reporting officer, for five years starting from-
 - (i) in the case of a report or a disclosure in relation to a business relationship, the date the business relationship ceased, or
 - (ii) in the case of a report or a disclosure in relation to an occasional transaction, the date that transaction was completed,
- (b) any training carried out under regulation 13 for five years starting from the date the training was carried out,

(c) any minutes or other documents prepared pursuant to regulation 15(c) until -

(i) the expiry of a period of five years starting from the date they were finalised, or

(ii) they are superseded by later minutes or other documents prepared under that regulation, whichever occurs later, and

(d) its policies, procedures and controls which it is required to establish and maintain pursuant to these Regulations, until the expiry of a period of five years starting from the date that they ceased to be operative.

(4) Documents and customer due diligence information, including any copies thereof, kept under this regulation -

(a) may be kept in any manner or form, provided that they are readily retrievable, and

(b) must be made available promptly to any police officer, the Commission or any other person where such documents or customer due diligence information are requested pursuant to these Regulations or any relevant enactment.

12. RECORD KEEPING

A financial services business must comply with the Rules in addition to the Regulations. The Rules are boxed and shaded for ease of reference. A financial services business should note that the Court must take account of the Rules and Guidance issued by the Commission in considering compliance with the Regulations.

12.1 Objectives

321. Record keeping is an essential component that the Regulations require in order to assist in any financial investigation and to ensure that criminal funds are kept out of the financial system, or if not, that they may be detected and confiscated by the appropriate authorities.

12.2 General and Legal Requirements

322. To ensure that the record keeping requirements of the Regulations are met, a financial services business must have appropriate and effective policies, procedures and controls in place to require that records are prepared, kept for the stipulated period and in a readily retrievable form so as to be available on a timely basis, i.e. promptly, to domestic competent authorities upon appropriate authority.

12.2.1 Customer due diligence information

323. In order to meet the requirement in the Regulations to keep transaction documents and CDD information a financial services business must keep the following records:

- copies of the identification data obtained to verify the identity of all customers, beneficial owners and underlying principals; and
- copies of any customer files, account files, business correspondence and information relating to the business relationship; or
- information as to where copies of the identification data may be obtained.

12.2.2 Transactions

324. In order to meet the requirement to keep each transaction document, all transactions carried out on behalf of or with a customer in the course of business, both domestic and international, must be recorded by the financial services business. In every case, sufficient information must be recorded to enable the reconstruction of individual transactions so as to provide, if necessary, evidence for prosecution of criminal activity.

325. A financial services business must ensure that in order to meet the record keeping requirements for transactions, documentation is maintained which must include:

- the name and address of the customer, beneficial owner and underlying principal;
- if a monetary transaction, the currency and amount of the transaction;
- account name and number or other information by which it can be identified;
- details of the counterparty, including account details;
- the nature of the transaction; and
- the date of the transaction.

326. Records relating to unusual and complex transactions and high risk transactions must include the financial services business' own reviews of such transactions.

12.2.3 Wire transfer records

327. See section 7.4 of Chapter 7 for the record keeping requirements of wire transfer documents.

12.2.4 Internal and external suspicion reports

328. In order to meet the requirement to keep records of reports of suspicion made to a MLRO, a financial services business must keep:

- the internal suspicion report;
- records of actions taken under the internal and external reporting requirements;
- when the MLRO has considered information or other material concerning possible money laundering, but has not made a disclosure of suspicion to the FIS, a record of the other material that was considered and the reason for the decision; and
- copies of any disclosures made to the FIS.

12.2.5 Training

329. Training records must include:

- the dates AML/CFT training was provided;
- the nature of the training; and
- the names of the employees who received training.

12.2.6 Compliance monitoring

330. In order to meet the requirement to keep records of documents prepared in connection with the obligation of the Board to discuss a review of compliance and of its compliance review policy and other policies, procedures and controls relating to compliance, a financial services business must retain:

- reports by the MLRO to the Board and senior management;
- records of consideration of those reports and of any action taken as a consequence; and
- any records made within the financial services business or by other parties in respect of compliance of the financial services business with the Regulations and the Handbook.

12.3 Record Keeping

331. The record keeping requirements are the same, regardless of the format in which the records are kept, or whether the transaction was undertaken by paper or electronic means or however they are subsequently retained. A financial services business must, however, consider whether keeping documents other than in original paper form could pose legal evidential difficulties, for example, in civil court proceedings.

12.3.1 Ready retrieval

332. A financial services business must periodically review the ease of retrieval of, and condition of, paper and electronically retrievable records.

333. Where the FIS or another domestic competent authority requires sight of records, under the Regulations or the relevant enactment, which according to a financial services business' procedures would ordinarily have been destroyed, the financial services business must none the less conduct a search for those records and provide as much detail to the FIS or other domestic competent authority as possible.

334. The Regulations require documents which must be kept to be made available promptly to domestic competent authorities where so requested under the Regulations or other relevant enactment. Financial services businesses must therefore consider the implications for meeting this requirement where documentation, data and information is held overseas or by third parties, such as under outsourcing arrangements, or where reliance is placed on introducers or intermediaries.

335. Financial services businesses must not enter into outsourcing arrangements or place reliance on third parties to retain records where access to records is likely to be restricted as this would be in breach of the Regulations which require records to be readily retrievable.

12.4 Period of Retention

336. The minimum retention periods are set out in Regulation 14.

337. When considering its policies, procedures and controls for the keeping of documents, a financial services business should weigh the needs of the investigating authorities against normal commercial considerations.

338. For example, when original vouchers are used for account entry, and are not returned to the customer or agent, it is of assistance to the authorities if these original documents are kept for at least one year to assist forensic analysis (for example, to investigate and prosecute cheque fraud).

12.5 Requirements on Closure or Transfer of Business

339. Where a financial services business terminates activities, or disposes of a business or a block of business relationships, for example, by way of asset sale, to another financial service provider the person taking on that business must ensure that the record keeping requirements in the Regulations are complied with in respect of such business.

13. SPECIFIC INDUSTRY SECTORS

13.1 Banking

13.1.1 Scope of application

340. Vigilance should govern all the stages of the bank's dealings with its customers, including: account opening; non-account holding customers; safe custody and safe deposit boxes; deposit-taking; lending; transactions into and out of accounts generally, including by way of electronic transfer (wire transfer) and marketing and self-promotion.
341. It needs to be borne in mind that loan and mortgage facilities (including the issuing of credit and charge cards) may be used by launderers at the layering or integration stages. Secured borrowing is an effective method of layering and integration because it puts a legitimate financial business (the lender) with a genuine claim to the security in the way of those seeking to restrain or confiscate the assets.
342. Banks that undertake transactions for persons who are not their account holders should be particularly careful to treat such persons (and any underlying principals) as verification subjects.
343. Particular precautions need to be taken in relation to requests to hold boxes, parcels and sealed envelopes in safe custody. Where such facilities are made available to non-account holders, the verification procedures set out in the Handbook should be followed.

13.1.2 Suspicious features or activities

344. In the absence of a satisfactory explanation the following should be regarded as suspicious activity:
- where a customer is reluctant to provide normal information or provides only minimal, false or misleading information;
 - where a customer provides information which is difficult or expensive for the bank to verify;
 - opening an account with a significant cash balance and/or subsequent substantial cash deposits, singly or in accumulations without a plausible and legitimate explanation;
 - unusual cash deposits without apparent cause, particularly where such deposits are subsequently withdrawn or transferred within a short time;
 - frequent small or modest cash deposits which taken together are substantial;
 - making use of a third party to deposit cash or negotiable instruments, particularly if these are promptly transferred between client or trust accounts;
 - the collection (either within the Bailiwick or in another country or territory) of significant cash sums singly or in accumulations without a plausible and legitimate explanation;

- where a deposit appears to be credited to an account only for the purpose of supporting the customer's order for a bankers' draft, money transfer or other negotiable or readily marketable money or bearer instrument;
- where deposits are received from other banks and the bank is aware of a regular consolidation of funds from such accounts prior to a request for onward transmission of funds;
- the avoidance by the customer or its representatives of direct contact with the bank (such as the use of night safes to make large cash deposits);
- the use of nominee accounts, trustee accounts or client accounts which appear to be unnecessary for or inconsistent with the type of business carried on by the underlying principal;
- the use of numerous accounts for no clear commercial reason where fewer would suffice (so serving to disguise the scale of the total deposits);
- the use by the customer of numerous individuals (particularly persons whose names do not appear on the mandate for the account) to make deposits;
- frequent switches of funds between accounts in different names or in different countries or territories;
- matching of payments out with credits paid in on the same or previous day;
- substantial withdrawal from a previously dormant or inactive account;
- substantial withdrawal from an account which has just received an unexpected large credit from overseas;
- use of bearer instruments outside a recognised dealing system in settlement of an account or otherwise; and
- where a customer declines to provide information which normally would make him eligible for valuable credit or other banking services; or where he inexplicably avoids normal banking facilities, such as higher interest rate facilities for larger credit balances.

13.1.3 Hold mail accounts

345. Hold or retained mail services should only be offered to customers as an exception and should only be provided where plausible and legitimate reasons for requiring the service are given.

13.1.4 Bearer instruments

346. Certain countries or territories permit their companies to issue bearer shares or other instruments as evidence of title. Banks should only open accounts for companies or structures capable of issuing bearer instruments where the holders of the instruments are verified. Banks should take steps to ensure that bearer instruments are held in secure custody by the bank or a trusted intermediary which has undertaken to inform the banks of any proposed change in ownership of the company or structure.

13.2 Fiduciary

13.2.1 Scope of application

347. Fiduciaries should understand the purposes and activities of the structures in relation to which they are appointed or to which they provide services. If they are unable to do so, they should consider whether a suspicion is raised that assets are, or represent, the proceeds of crime.

13.2.2 Suspicious features or activities

348. If a fiduciary is unable to obtain an adequate explanation of the following features, or any other feature which causes it concern, suspicion could be raised:

- complex networks of trusts and/or nominee ships and/or companies;
- transactions which lack economic purpose (for example, sales or purchases at undervalued or inflated prices; payments or receipts being split between a large number of bank accounts or other financial services products; companies consistently making substantial losses);
- transactions which are inconsistent (for example, in size or source) with the expected objectives of the structure;
- arrangements established with the apparent objective of fiscal evasion;
- structures or transactions set up or operated in an unnecessarily secretive way, for example, involving “blind” trusts, bearer shares, endorsed cheques, cash or other bearer instruments or use of P.O. Boxes;
- lack of clarity about beneficial ownership or interests or difficulties in verifying identity of persons with ownership or control;
- unwillingness to disclose the source of assets to be received by a trust or company;
- unwillingness for the fiduciary to have the degree of information and control which it needs to fulfil its duties;
- use of general powers of attorney in a manner which dilutes the control of a company’s directors.

349. When considering whether these or other features cause suspicion, fiduciaries should obtain documentary evidence where appropriate and record explanations they receive.

350. In addition to performing adequate CDD before commencement of the relationship, the fiduciary should, on an ongoing basis, monitor the activities of the structures to which it provides services.

13.3 Investment

13.3.1 Investment Funds

13.3.1.1 Scope of application

351. Investment funds may be open to abuse by people seeking to launder money. The risk of that abuse is increased by the fact that most transactions for subscription, redemption or transfer will not be conducted on a face-to-face basis, and to a similar extent the risk is mitigated by the fact that where some transactions are not conducted on the face-to-face basis, they will typically involve a regulated intermediary or introducer, in Guernsey or elsewhere.
352. To the extent that intermediaries and introducers are regulated in Guernsey, or in a country or territory listed in Appendix C to the Handbook, then financial services businesses may, in the circumstances described in sections 4.9, 4.10 and 6.6 of the Handbook, rely on the intermediary or introducer to identify the investor and to certify that they have verified the identity of the investor.
353. In order to mitigate the risks of money laundering, firms should take steps to identify any third party subscribers or payees or refuse to accept or make third party payments. Furthermore, most retail investors use these products for medium and long term savings, which makes short-term investment or high turnover unusual and often relatively straightforward to monitor. Where the risks of money laundering are mitigated, then the relevant funds may be considered to be low risk in terms of their use for money laundering purposes. Investors in institutional funds, including private equity funds, may be considered to be of lower risk than their retail counterparts by virtue of the restricted types of investor, rather than the product features. Notwithstanding such consideration it is still necessary to know the identity of such investors.

13.3.1.2 Suspicious features or activities

354. Since most investment is made for medium- and long-term objectives, transactions suggesting that improper use is being made of an investment fund will tend to centre on transactions with very short holding periods (particularly where the investor appears uninterested in mitigating the effect of initial charges).
355. Transactions in open-ended funds, or initial subscriptions at the launch of a closed-ended fund, where funds are to be received from a third party or repaid to a third party, require enhanced due diligence. Funds should not in general be accepted from or paid to a third party without that third party having had its identity verified by the fund operator.

13.3.2 Discretionary and advisory asset management

13.3.2.1 Scope of application

356. In terms of risks associated with money laundering and terrorist financing, there is little distinction between discretionary and advisory asset management activities. In both cases the customer will usually need to have been subject to full assessment at take on, both in order to verify identity and source of funds, and it will in any case be necessary to review the customer's objectives in order to assess, for other regulatory reasons, the suitability of transactions undertaken or recommended for the customer.

13.3.2.2 Suspicious features or activities

357. Consideration should be given to undertaking enhanced due diligence where there are frequent and unexplained additions to the investment portfolio, and or where there are frequent and unexplained requests for assets to be realised and the funds paid away. As with investment funds, receipt of funds from, or remission of funds to, third parties should not be undertaken unless there is a satisfactory explanation for the arrangement and the identity of the third party has been verified by the service provider.

13.3.3 Intermediaries

358. The paragraphs below should be read together with section 6.6 of the Handbook.

13.3.3.1 Scope of application

359. Intermediaries may provide stock broking services and also act as interface between the investor and other investment product providers. As with discretionary and advisory asset managers, intermediaries will need to have set up, under Guernsey regulatory rules, a full customer agreement with any potential customer and will need to assure themselves the suitability of any recommendation they make. They will therefore need to have researched and verified the customer's identity, source of funds and investment objectives in order to provide that service in accordance with the requirements of the Regulations and the Handbook.
360. "Execution Only" arrangements, in which the service provider is not required to assess the suitability of any transaction for the customer, can be a feature of intermediary business. That would not absolve the intermediary from a knowledge and verification of a customer's identity and source of funds.

13.3.3.2 Suspicious features or activities

361. As with investment fund operators, and discretionary and advisory asset managers, intermediaries will need to be vigilant as to the source and use of the assets which they are invited to trade. In particular, intermediaries will need to make enquiries in circumstances where there are sudden and unexplained additions to, or transfers from, the client's investment portfolio.

362. Intermediaries will also be on enquiry in circumstances where the client appears indifferent to the profit or loss generated by trading activities.
363. Intermediaries will also need to make enquiries where the client transfers, and asks the intermediary to dispose of, assets which were not acquired through that intermediary, since transfers of assets off market may provide a vehicle for the laundering of money.

13.4 Insurance

13.4.1 Scope of application

364. Insurers, insurance managers, and the introducers of insurance business are responsible for transactions which present a number of opportunities for money laundering and the financing of terrorism. As such the proper identification of the sources of funding for these transactions, the purposes of these transactions and the ultimate benefit of these transactions should be fully understood and documented by licensees. If an insurance licensee is faced with a transaction which it cannot fully explain and document, then suspicion should be raised if subsequent enquiries do not provide plausible explanation.

13.4.2 Suspicious features or activities

365. In the absence of a satisfactory explanation the following should be regarded as suspicious activity:
 - the purchase of a significant single premium product followed by the early surrender or termination of the policy where this gives rise to a loss, or to a payment to an unusual third party;
 - the use of trusts within the ownership structure of a managed insurer;
 - transactions which are inconsistent in size or source with the expected business plan and cash-flow projections of the licensee;
 - transactions which are either priced at a level which is significantly out of line with current market rates, or where claims incidence is significantly out of line with current market loss ratios;
 - introductions from brokers or agents based in countries or territories with which the licensee is unfamiliar, or from which criminal or terrorist funding activity is known or suspected to occur;
 - overly complex or confusing transactions, including any transactions involving a number of counterparties or multi-jurisdictional entities;
 - insurance transactions giving rise to unusually large or uneconomic commission payments or expenses, especially where the payments are to unrelated or unknown recipients;

- bearer shares within the ownership structure of a licensee, or bearer instruments used to fund the premiums or capital of a licensee;
- individuals or corporate entities based in unregulated or loosely regulated countries or territories, especially where there are difficulties or undue delays in obtaining information in respect such individuals or entities;
- receipts or payments which appear to have little or no economic value, or where such receipts or payments are split between a large number of counterparties;
- introductions from clients in overseas countries or territories where comparable policies are available “closer to home”;
- transactions involving cash payments from unusual third parties, or where settlement directions are for the benefit of unusual third parties rather than the policyholder;
- early termination of policies, especially at a loss, and/or when the repayment request is for the benefit of a third party, or in a different form to the initial premium payment.

366. Illustrations of the type of situation that might give rise to reasonable grounds for suspicion in some circumstances are:

- transactions or instructions which have no apparent purpose and which make no obvious economic sense;
- where the transaction being requested by the customer, without reasonable explanation, is out of the ordinary range of services normally provided or is outside the experience of the financial services business in relation to the particular customer, customer profile or business relationship;
- transfers to and from high risk countries or territories without reasonable explanation;
- where the customer refuses to provide routine information requested by the financial services business without reasonable explanation;
- where a customer who has entered into a business relationship uses the relationship for a single transaction or for only a very short period of time;
- unusual patterns of payment such as unnecessary routing of funds through third party accounts, cash payments (receipts or collection), making more than one payment or making payments to a variety of accounts where one would normally be expected; and
- requests for hold mail facilities without legitimate purpose.

13.5 General

13.5.1 Suspicious features or activities

367. In the absence of a satisfactory explanation the following might give grounds for suspicion in some circumstances:

- unusual early cancellation of any financial products or services that result in an economic penalty to the customer;
- large numbers of individuals making payments into one account;
- customers who have accounts with many financial services businesses in the same jurisdiction;
- frequent requests for travellers cheques, drafts or other negotiable instruments or frequent paying of funds using these types of instruments;
- frequent and seemingly unnecessary currency exchanges;
- unexpected repayment activity on loans;
- the use of a financial product as a loan collateral in unusual circumstances (for example, the purchase of a product which is immediately used as collateral);
- transactions that are at economically disadvantageous terms for the customer;
- transactions with last minute amendments to settlement instructions or changes to a third party settlement;
- advice being requested on a capital structure or industrial strategy where the arrangement is not characteristic of the customer's profile.

APPENDIX C

COUNTRIES OR TERRITORIES WHOSE REGULATED FINANCIAL SERVICES BUSINESSES MAY BE TREATED AS IF THEY WERE LOCAL FINANCIAL SERVICES BUSINESSES

Austria	Japan
Australia	Jersey
Belgium	Luxembourg
Canada	Netherlands
Denmark	New Zealand
Finland	Norway
France	Portugal
Germany	Singapore
Gibraltar	South Africa
Greece	Spain
Hong Kong	Sweden
Iceland	Switzerland
Ireland	United Kingdom
Isle of Man	United States of America
Italy

Appendix C to the Handbook was established to reflect those countries or territories which the Commission considers require regulated financial services businesses to have in place standards to combat money laundering and terrorist financing consistent with the FATF Recommendations and where such financial services businesses are supervised for compliance with those requirements. It was also designed as a mechanism to recognise the geographic spread of the customers of the Guernsey finance sector and is reviewed periodically with countries or territories being added as appropriate.

The fact that a country or territory has requirements to combat money laundering and terrorist financing that are consistent with the FATF Recommendations means only that the necessary legislation and other means of ensuring compliance with the Recommendations is in force in that country or territory. It does not provide assurance that a particular overseas financial services business is subject to that legislation, or that it has implemented the necessary measures to ensure compliance with that legislation.

Guernsey financial services businesses are not obliged to deal with regulated financial services businesses in the jurisdictions listed above as if they were local, notwithstanding that they meet the requirements identified in this Appendix. Guernsey financial services businesses should use their commercial judgement in considering whether or not to deal with a regulated financial services business and may, if they wish, impose higher standards than the minimum standards identified in the Handbook.

In accordance with the definition provided for in the Regulations an “Appendix C financial services business” means -

- (a) a financial services business supervised by the Commission; or

(b) a business -

- (i) which is carried on from a country or territory listed in Appendix C to the Handbook and which would, if it were carried on in the Bailiwick, be a financial services business;
- (ii) which may only be carried on in that country or territory by a person regulated for that purpose under the law of that country or territory;
- (iii) the conduct of which is subject to requirements to forestall, prevent and detect money laundering and terrorist financing that are consistent with those in the Financial Action Task Force Recommendations on Money Laundering in respect of such a business; and
- (iv) the conduct of which is supervised for compliance with the requirements referred to in subparagraph (iii), by an overseas regulatory authority.

The absence of a country or territory from the above list does not prevent the application of section 4.9.1 of the Handbook (reliable introductions by an overseas branch or member of the same group, subject to satisfactory terms of business).

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations impose requirements on financial services businesses for the purpose of forestalling and preventing money laundering and terrorist financing.

They revoke and replace the Criminal Justice (Proceeds of Crime) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Regulations, 2002 (“2002 Regulations”) which also imposed such requirements.

The new Regulations contain significant differences to the 2002 Regulations to reflect revised international recommendations relating to money laundering and terrorist financing.

In particular they contain new obligations relating to carrying out risk assessments in relation to a financial service business as a whole and each business relationship it has with a customer (regulation 3), more precise requirements relating to the identification of persons on whose behalf transactions are carried out or who have effective control over customers (regulation 4), the timing of customer due diligence (regulation 7), provisions relating to the maintenance of customer accounts and carrying on business with shell banks (regulation 8), the monitoring of business relationships (regulation 11) and ensuring compliance and corporate responsibility for compliance (regulation 15).

The Regulations also substitute the definition of “financial services business” in Schedule 1 to the Criminal Justice (Proceeds of Crime) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 1999 (regulation 18 and the Schedule). The main changes of principle to that definition include that there is an express reference to anything that can only lawfully be done by licence or is exempted from that requirement under the Insurance Managers and Insurance Intermediaries (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2002. The provisions excluding certain incidental and other activities carried on by lawyers, accountants, actuaries and within a group of companies have been reworded and included in a new Part II to the Schedule.

Part I of the Regulations contains the requirements relating to risk assessment, Part II the requirements relating to customer due diligence including where enhanced due diligence must be carried out or where reduced or simplified due diligence may be carried out. Part III contains the requirements on financial services businesses to ensure their compliance with the Regulations, on record keeping and on internal reporting of suspicious transactions and employee training. Part IV provides for offences and penalties and makes similar provision to the 2002 Regulations by requiring specified financial services businesses, not licensed under the main financial services regulatory legislation, to notify certain information to the Guernsey Financial Services Commission; it also contains a new obligation on persons providing money or value transmission services to maintain a list of agents.

A Court must take into account rules and guidance contained in the Guernsey Financial Services Commission’s Handbook for Financial Services Businesses on Countering Financial Crime and Terrorist Financing in determining whether a financial services business has complied with these Regulations.

APPENDIX G

MONEY LAUNDERING AND FINANCING OF TERRORISM TECHNIQUES AND METHODS

What is Money Laundering?

Deception is the heart of money laundering: at its most basic level money laundering is deception by attempting to make assets appear to have been obtained through legal means with legally-earned funds or to be owned by third parties who have no relationship to the true owner.

The goal of a large number of criminal acts is to generate a profit for the individual or group that carries out the act. From the perspective of the criminal, it is no use making a profit from criminal activities if that profit cannot be put to use. A proportion of the profit will often be re-invested into further criminal ventures, but criminals will often wish to use the rest for other purposes. If this activity is to be achieved without being detected the money must be 'laundered'. Money laundering can be described as the processing of criminal proceeds to disguise their illegal origin. Criminals seek to put their proceeds of crime into a state in which it appears to have an entirely respectable origin. If this act is carried out successfully it allows criminals to maintain control over their proceeds and ultimately to provide a legitimate cover for their source of income. Where criminals are allowed to use the proceeds of crime, the ability to launder such proceeds makes crime more attractive.

However, this does not mean that all criminals need to resort to elaborate schemes in order to create the perception of legitimacy of the source and ownership of their assets. Small-time criminals rarely do; they deal in cash and avoid financial institutions as much as possible. Even with regard to larger criminal activities the need to launder money will vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction.

The money laundering process is generally made up of three stages:

- The placement stage where illegitimate funds find their way into the financial system via payment into legitimate accounts. For example, depositing cash in banks which ask no questions, using business entities that are cash intensive in nature to commingle funds, buying precious metals/diamonds, or artwork/stamp collections;
- The layering stage which is used to disguise the audit trail between the funds and the original point of entry into the financial system. This is achieved by moving the funds around so that the origins of the money become obscured. For example, by transferring funds across borders, purchasing investment bonds, gambling at the race track or at casinos, and making use of foreign financial centres;
- The integration stage where funds are reintroduced as legitimate wealth to fund further activities or to acquire assets.

What is Financing of Terrorism?

For terrorists, the acquisition of funds is not an end in itself but a means of committing a terrorist attack. With terrorist financing, it does not matter whether the transmitted funds come from a legal or illegal source. Indeed, terrorist financing frequently involves funds that, prior to being remitted, are unconnected to any illegal activity. Examples have occurred when legitimate funds have been donated to charities that, sometimes unknown to the donors, are actually fronts for terrorist organisations.

Tracking terrorist financial transactions arising from legitimate sources is more difficult than following the money trails of the proceeds of crime because of the often relatively small amount of funds required for terrorist actions and the range of legitimate sources and uses of funds. While many organised crime groups are adept at concealing their wealth and cash flows for long periods of time, their involvement in the physical trade of illicit drugs, arms, and other commodities, often exposes the revenues and expenditures connected to these illegal dealings. In contrast, terrorist attacks are in many cases comparatively inexpensive, and their financing is often overshadowed by the larger financial resources allocated for the group's political and social activities, making it more difficult to uncover the illicit nexus.

Identifying and disrupting the mechanisms through which terrorism is financed are key elements in the overall efforts to combat terrorism. As well as reducing the financial flows to terrorists and disrupting their activities, action to counter terrorist financing can provide vital information on terrorists and their networks, which in turn improves law enforcement agencies' ability to undertake successful investigations.

Red Flags

Much of the information in Chapter 13 can be used for training purposes and to provide employees with examples of red flags. The case studies below can also be used for training purposes.

Case Studies

The following case studies demonstrate how financial products and services can be used to launder the proceeds of crime or to finance terrorism.

Money Laundering

Example 1 – Laundering through temporary bank accounts

An investigation revealed that the proceeds of a value added tax evasion scheme were laundered through a series of bank accounts established for short term purposes. The launderer transferred the proceeds to a bank and requested that the funds be placed in an account for a short period because he had not decided in which account to place them. A few days later, he instructed the bank to return the money in cash or by cheque. The transaction was not registered in the books of the launderer. Investigators also discovered that the launderer used each bank account for more than one transaction. Afterwards, he sometimes asked the bank to transfer the funds to other accounts at the same bank or another bank, which had been opened on behalf of companies controlled by the launderer. False invoices for fictitious deliveries to these companies were used to justify the transfers.

Example 2 – A PEP launders his proceeds of corruption

A politician and government official in Country M arranged for his wife and children to receive the benefits of payments for infrastructure projects ranging from public swimming pools to power stations which he had supported on receipt of substantial payments.

Trusts and companies were established in a number of tax neutral countries for each of the family members.

A large proportion of the family's wealth – some of which was inherited – was administered by a bank in Country M. The bank had made introductions to the service providers in the tax neutral countries. In addition, the politician entered into business ventures in other jurisdictions, particularly Country L, a European country with a sophisticated finance sector. In all his transactions in foreign countries the politician portrayed himself as a businessman.

As a change in government in Country M became likely the politician asked the local bank to arrange for the administration of much of the family's portfolio to be moved to a bank in Country L. It was only when newspaper reports of the corrupt practices in Country M enabled the bank in Country L to make enquiries and to draw a link between the politician in Country M and the assets it administered that a disclosure report was made to the Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU).

Example 3 – A trust structure and loans are used for laundering the proceeds of alcohol smuggling

A national of Country A was convicted of smuggling a huge quantity of alcohol. A small part of the proceeds were confiscated. The police found documents showing a company in Country A had mortgage loans from a company owned by a trust in Country B. After the conviction, the FIU in Country A learned that the convicted person and his common law wife were the beneficial owners of the company in Country A. With assistance from the office of the public prosecutor in Country B, the FIU obtained information which showed that the company received money from a bank account in a third country (Country C). It was suspected that the proceeds from the smuggling had been transported as cash to the Country C bank, the funds were then transferred to the company owned by the trust in Country B and finally remitted back to Country A as "mortgage loans". It was clear that neither the companies, nor the convicted person, nor his common law wife had paid any instalments on the mortgage.

Example 4 – A lawyer uses cross-border companies and trust accounts to launder money

Mr S headed an organisation importing narcotics into Country A from Country B. A lawyer, Mr L, was employed by Mr S to launder the proceeds of this operation.

In order to launder the proceeds of the narcotics operation, Mr L established a web of foreign corporate entities. These entities were incorporated in Country C, where scrutiny of ownership, records, and finances was not strong. A local management company in Country D administered these companies. The companies were used to camouflage the movement of illicit funds, the acquisition of assets and the financing of criminal activities. Mr S was the holder of 100% of the bearer share capital of these entities.

In Country A, a distinct group of persons and companies without any apparent association to Mr S transferred large amounts of money to Country D where it was deposited in, or transited through, the companies owned by Mr S. This same network was found to have been used to transfer large amounts of money to a person in Country E who was later found to be responsible for drug shipments destined for Country A.

Several other lawyers and their client accounts were found to have been used to receive cash and transfer funds, ostensibly for the benefit of commercial customers in Country A.

Concurrently, Mr L established a separate similar network (which included other lawyers) to purchase assets and place funds in vehicles and instruments designed to mask the beneficial owner's identity.

Example 5 – Bull markets provide laundering opportunity

The equity market in Country C was in a bull phase. An individual who claimed he was a wealthy property developer from Country D approached an investment adviser in country C. He stressed that he wished to invest in equities as quickly as possible. A portfolio was purchased and after several months the individual closed his positions, claiming that he anticipated the bull market would shortly enter a bear phase. Just before payment the individual inexplicably arranged for funds to be transmitted to the account of a company in Country G. The investment adviser made a disclosure report to the FIU.

Example 6 – A securities firm is compromised by fraud and tainted funds

A securities professional opened an account in the name of the wife of his customer and deposited the proceeds of a legitimate real estate sale. He then engaged in a series of fraudulent put and call transactions on behalf of his customer, fabricating contracts after the price trends of the underlying securities were known. The contracts were designated as a put or a call based on the established price trend of the security, so as to ensure in every case that his client would realise a profit. Through this process, the professional was able to introduce over US$157,000 representing the proceeds of crime into his customer's account and to justify its presence as profit from derivatives transactions.

Example 7 – Insurance policies and real estate

An insurance company in country A reported a disclosure to the FIU that it had underwritten two life insurance policies with a total value of US $268,000 in the name of two European nationals. Payment was made by a cheque drawn on the accounts of a brokerage firm in a major, foreign EU financial market and a notary in the south-eastern region of the country. The two policies were then put up as collateral for a mortgage valued at US$1,783,000 that was provided by a company specialising in leasing transactions. As the policyholders did not make payment in their own names, the insurance company contacted the brokerage firm in order to discover the exact origin of the funds deposited in its account. It was informed that the funds had been received in cash and that the parties concerned were merely occasional clients. The case was passed to the prosecution authorities.

Example 8 – Money launderers use insurance intermediaries to “clean” their funds

Money launderers in several countries used the services of an intermediary to purchase insurance policies. Identification was taken from the customers by way of an identification card, but these details were unable to be clarified by the providing institution locally, which relied on the intermediary doing customer due diligence checks.

The policies were put in place and the relevant payments made by the intermediary to the local insurer. After a couple of months had elapsed, the insurer would receive notification from the customer stating that there was now a change in circumstances, and he/she would have to close the policy. The money launderers suffered losses but came away with “clean” cheques from the local insurer.

On other occasions a policy would be left to run for a couple of years before being closed with the request that the payment be made to a third party. This was often paid, with the receiving institution, if local, not querying the payment as it had come from another reputable local institution.

Example 9 – A general insurance policy is used to launder money

A criminal used the proceeds of fraud to purchase marine property and casualty insurance. He paid large premiums on the policy and suborned the intermediaries so that regular claims were made and paid. However, he was careful to ensure that the claims were less than the premium payments so that the insurer enjoyed a reasonable profit on the policy.

In this way, the money launderer was able to receive claims cheques from a reputable insurance company which represented his laundered funds.

Example 10 – Foreign exchange transaction leads to case of laundered drug and diamond smuggling proceeds

A foreign exchange transaction of euro into US dollars for a value of almost US$177,000 was reported to the FIU of Country A. At the time of the transaction, the individual gave the exchange office an address in another country (Country B). This first transaction was soon followed by four more similar transactions. After several weeks, the total value of the transactions reached US$618,000. After a break of six months, the transactions resumed. Over a four month period, the individual reappeared with further large amounts of euro to be converted into dollars. The total amount of the transactions described in disclosure reports to the FIU amounted to more than US$1.3 million.

The information obtained by law enforcement authorities indicated that the individual had no criminal record in Country A. As the case involved large amounts, for which there existed no apparently legitimate economic justification, the FIU pursued the investigation. Several foreign FIUs were approached. One of them (in Country F) was able to provide useful information: the individual was known as a member of a group of drug traffickers which performed the same type of foreign transactions in Country F. Investigations of the members of this group were already in progress in Country F. It also appeared that the address provided by the individual during the first contact with the bureau de change in Country A was false. On the basis of these elements, the FIU decided to turn over the case file to the prosecution authority.

The investigation showed that the individual had not been acting alone. For a number of years she had played a dominant role in money laundering transactions involving a total amount of around US$11.5 million. The individual was arrested in the company of one of her accomplices and in possession of a large sum in US dollars. She acknowledged the foreign exchange transactions, as well as the illicit origin of the funds from illegal diamond trafficking. She was sentenced to four years in prison (two of which were suspended) and a fine of nearly US$1 million. The funds seized were confiscated.

Example 11 – Payments are structured via a money remitter to avoid detection

Over a four year period, Mr A and his uncle operated a money remittance service known as Company S and conducted their business as an agent of a larger money remitting business that was suspected of being used to finance terrorism. An investigation was initiated in relation to Company S based on a disclosure report.

The investigation showed that over the four year period, Mr A's business had received over US$4 million in cash from individuals wishing to transmit money to various countries. When Mr A's business received the cash from customers, it was deposited into multiple accounts at various branches of banks in Country G. In order to avoid the automatic financial reporting requirements in effect in Country G, Mr A and others always deposited the cash with the banks in sums of less than US$10,000, sometimes making multiple deposits of less than US$10,000 in a single day.

Mr A was charged and pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to structure currency transactions in order to evade financial reporting requirements.

Example 12 – US$178 million is laundered through internet gambling scheme and leasing arrangements

A joint investigation by the national criminal and fiscal police of Country C targeted a sports tout service (STC) providing its illegal gambling services by means of the internet. The STC also functioned as an internet service provider (ISP). The STC collected, collated, and analysed statistical and other information relative to sporting events, and then sold this information to subscribers who would factor it into their betting decisions. The targeted STC/ISP expanded its services to include two gambling operations located in Countries D and E, both of which accepted wagers via the internet or toll-free telephone numbers. Police agents were successful in infiltrating the targeted operation.

To launder the proceeds from their illegal internet gambling activities, the subjects of the investigation employed the services of a lawyer. He devised an elaborate scheme using leasing arrangements to which the STC/ISP was party and bank accounts in Countries D and E. Funds were eventually funnelled back to banks in Country C. Investigators estimate that approximately US$178 million was wagered through the STC/ISP annually.

Subjects in this investigation are potentially open to charges of gambling, money laundering, tax evasion and other organised crime related offences.

Example 13 – Property, equities and artworks

The FIU of Country G received information that a previously convicted drug trafficker had made several investments in real estate and was planning to buy a hotel. An assessment of his financial situation did not reveal any legal source of income, and he was subsequently arrested and charged with an offence of money laundering. Further investigation substantiated the charge that part of the invested funds were proceeds of his own drug trafficking. He was charged with drug trafficking, drug money laundering and other offences.

The criminal's lawyer received the equivalent of approximately US$70,000 cash from his client, placed this money in his client's bank account and later made investments in equity products on the customer's instructions. He was convicted of money laundering in relation to these transactions. Another part of the drug proceeds was laundered by a director of an art museum in a foreign country who received US$15,000 for producing forged documents for the sale of artworks which never took place.

Terrorist Financing

Example 1 – An individual's account activity and inclusion on an official list show possible link to terrorist activity

An individual residing in Country A had a demand deposit account and a savings account at a bank in Country B. The bank that maintained the accounts noticed the gradual withdrawal of funds from the accounts and decided to monitor the accounts more closely. The suspicions of the bank were subsequently reinforced when a name very similar to that of the account holder appeared in an official list of persons and/of entities suspected of involvement in terrorism. The bank immediately made a report to the FIU.

The FIU analysed the financial movements relating to the accounts of the individual using records requested from the bank. Both of the accounts had been opened by the individual in 1990 and had been fed mostly by cash deposits.

The individual made a sizeable transfer from his savings account to his demand deposit account. These funds were used to pay for a single premium life insurance policy and to purchase certificates of deposit. The individual made several more large transfers from his savings account to his demand deposit account. These funds were transferred abroad to persons and companies located in neighbouring countries and in other regions. The individual then sold the certificates of deposit and transferred the profits to the accounts of companies based in Asia and to that of a company established in his country of origin.

The FIU made enquiries internationally. The anti-money laundering unit in the individual's country of origin communicated information related to suspicious operations carried out by the individual and by the companies that received the transfers. This enabled the FIU to draw links between the individual, the companies and money laundering and terrorist financing.

Example 2 – Cash deposits to the accounts of a non-profit organisation are used to finance terrorist group

The FIU in Country L received a disclosure report from a bank regarding an account held by an investment company in another jurisdiction. The bank's suspicions had arisen after the company's secretary made several large cash deposits in different foreign currencies. According to the secretary these funds were intended to finance companies in the media sector. The FIU requested information from several financial institutions. Through these enquiries, it learned that the directors of the investment company were residing in Country L and a bordering country. They had opened accounts at various banks in Country L under the names of media companies and a non-profit organisation involved in the promotion of cultural activities.

According to the analysis by the FIU, the directors of the investment company and several other customers had made cash deposits to the accounts. These funds were ostensibly intended for the financing of media based projects. The analysis further revealed that the account held by the non-profit organisation was receiving almost daily deposits in small amounts from third parties. The manager of this organisation stated that the money deposited in this account originated from its members for the funding of cultural activities.

Police information obtained by the FIU revealed that the directors of the investment company were known to have been involved in money laundering and that an investigation was already under way into their activities. The directors appeared to be members of a terrorist group, which was financed by extortion and narcotics trafficking. Funds were collected through the non-profit organisation.

Example 3 – Loans for hotels for individuals with suspected terrorist links revealed by a disclosure report

The FIU in Country D received a disclosure report from a domestic bank regarding an account held by an individual residing in a neighbouring country. The individual managed European-based companies and had filed two loan applications on their behalf with the reporting institution. These loan applications amounted to several million US dollars and were ostensibly intended for the purchase of luxury hotels in Country D. The bank did not grant any of the loans.

The analysis by the FIU revealed that the funds for the purchase of the hotels were to be channelled through the accounts of the companies represented by the individual. One of the companies making the purchase of these hotels would then have been taken over by an individual from another country. This second person represented a group of enterprises whose activities focused on the hotel and leisure sectors, and he appeared to be the ultimate intended buyer of the hotels. On the basis of the analysis by the FIU, it appeared that the subject of the disclosure report was acting as a front for the ultimate intended buyer. The latter individual, as well as his family, were suspected of being linked to terrorism.

Example 4 – Fake car accident and life insurance to be used to fund terrorism

Intelligence sources in Country G uncovered information that a member of a suspected terrorist cell was purchasing life insurance policies from a large number of insurers. The intelligence sources were also aware that the individual intended to visit a country in another region where his death was to be faked in a car accident – his wife was to collect the insurance, which was to be used to fund terrorism. Members of the cell were arrested when it was discovered that they intended to move their base of operations from Country G to another country.
